

Compromise Is Indicated for Pay-Hour Bill

Southerners May Delay Attack Until Joint Group Acts

FIGHT IS PROBABLE

Regional Differentials Continue Objective Of South

Washington—(P)—Opposing senate factions edged closer today to a prospective wage-hour compromise designed to placate southern opposition by permitting the secretary of labor to fix a geographically-varied scale of minimum pay.

There were strong indications that the southerners might agree to postpone any attack until a joint committee has a chance to compose the differences between the house and senate measures.

If the committee does not approve regional differentials, however, the foes are expected to fight adoption of any compromise in the closing days of the session.

The house bill, which they especially dislike, provides for a national minimum wage of 25 cents an hour, increasing to 40 cents in three years, and for a maximum work week of 44 hours, reduced to 40 after two years.

Provides For Board
The senate measure would let a board fix minimum wages for each industry up to 40 cents an hour, and maximum work weeks of 40 hours or more.

Although a conference of prominent senators yesterday produced no agreement, Senator Harrison (D-Miss.), leader of the opposition, later indicated he might accept a compromise placing wage differentials under the secretary of labor. His attitude was said to grow out of Secretary Perkins' recognition of lower living costs in the south when she has fixed minimum pay for government contracts under the Walsh-Healey act.

Chairman Thomas (D-Utah) of the senate labor committee also was understood to regard that proposal as reasonable. Some senators, however, expressed doubt that house members of a joint committee would agree to any wage differential.

May Interrupt Debate
Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, said he probably would interrupt debate on the $3,247,000 relief and public works bill to ask the senate to send the wage-hour measure to a conference committee.

Senate foes of the "pump priming" sections of the relief bill said they would try to delay a final vote on that legislation until next week, for they believe their strength will grow during debate. This coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats seeks particularly to remove an $865,000,000 appropriation for public works loans and grants.

Despite an administration plea for new taxes to meet any additional farm benefits, Senator Barkley forecast approval of an amendment by Senator Russell (D-Ga.) to include in the relief bill $12,000,000 for extra agricultural payments. Congress already has voted $500,000,000 for the crop control program.

Must Apply to District Head for Montello Span
Washington—(P)—Senator Duffy (D-Wis.) has written Andrew P. Cotter, Montello, Wis., that the city must apply to the army district engineer in Milwaukee to determine procedure for a new bridge over the Fox river.

Cotter wrote Duffy telling him a bridge maintained by the city at the government stock needs to be replaced and urged that he take steps to get a federal grant for part of the cost, estimated at $33,000 to $50,000.

When Duffy took it up with the war department he was told it first must be submitted to Lieutenant Colonel W. H. Holcomb at Milwaukee.

Marriage Smith Will Be Jobless
Runaway marriages "over the anvil" at the famous blacksmith's shop in Gretna Green, Scotland, are no longer possible, functioning of that spur-of-the-moment marriage mill being abolished by a law just passed by Britain's Parliament. This may be a blow to the "romance" that radio newsmen daily drool about. But at any rate, in Great Britain, the knock-and-hammer of the nuptial anvil chorus will henceforth be a strictly private pastime, not officially countenanced. However, home comfort is still feasible through The Post-Crescent classified want-ads. This one proved it by securing a tenant for this fine property:

Rebel Airport Destroyed in Mexican Raid

Government Also Reports Aerial Attacks on Federal Towns

TROOPS IN CLASHES

Two Pitched Engagements Reported Between Factions

Mexico City—(P)—The Mexican government today said its planes raided and destroyed a Ceditista rebel airport a few hours after War Minister Manuel Avila Camacho had declared rebel planes, some of them flown by United States pilots, had bombed several small towns occupied by loyal federalists.

Bombing ships raided the rebel airport near El Rucio in San Luis Potosi state yesterday, the government press bureau announced, blasting and firing gasoline tanks and scattering the party guarding the field.

From Tampico came word that a swift plane swooped low over that port and let fall a shower of leaflets propagandizing the cause of General Saturnino Cedillo, the rebel chieftain.

Other developments included the report of two pitched engagements between detachments of federales and Ceditista bands, one of them lasting eight hours, and the decision by President Lazaro Cardenas to send school teachers in the wake of his soldiers into the small villages and towns to explain his program to the peasants.

Details Not Given
Details of the reported raids by Ceditista aviators were not divulged by General Avila. He said, however, that Cedillo had foreign aviators in his employ, among them United States fliers.

The government communique quoted him as saying Cedillo had but three planes in his service, two of them designed for commercial use and the other a military machine.

Other sources, however, asserted the rebel leader last August had ten machines, two of them transports and the other eight purports or observation ships, all acquired in the United States.

One government report of aerial activity said a band of rebels near

Lewis Proposes New Relief Plan

Illinois Senator Would Pay Losses Incurred in Speeding Up Business

Washington—(P)—Senator Lewis (D-Ill.), Democratic whip of the senate, proposed today to replace the present relief system with one of paying losses of manufacturers and merchants incurred in stepping their business up to capacity.

He cited relief conditions in Chicago and his home state to the senate yesterday in support of his proposal, and warned that continuation of the Chicago situation would lead to riots, to insurrection and rebellion.

"There is another aspect to this whole matter which I regard as very serious," Lewis said. "In the community where I live citizens march up and down the streets, claiming their right to have their salaries increased under the name of WPA or PWA, as the case may be, and threaten the public men of the government with opposition unless this privilege is continued."

"There is a threat to band together that class of men under a political organization to terrorize those seeking public office or those holding public office, with the threat that unless those persons are permitted to continue in employment which gives them compensation but which involves no real honest effort on their own part, they will band together and politically displace him from office, humiliate him with defeat."

No Senate Observer To Go to Jersey City
Washington—(P)—Chairman LaFollette (P-Wis.) of the senate civil liberties committee, said today the committee would not send an observer to two Jersey City meetings called for tonight and tomorrow night.

The Hudson County Committee for Labor Defense and Civil Rights asked that a LaFollette committee representative be sent to a meeting called for tonight by Hugh A. Kelley, secretary to Governor A. Harry Moore and leader of a war veterans group which was instrumental in prompting two congressmen from speaking recently in Jersey City. The county committee also asked LaFollette to send an observer to a meeting planned there tomorrow night by the labor defense and civil rights group.

Lawyers Named to Defend Ekern in Fight for Office

Madison—(P)—The governor's office announced today that Ralph Hoyt and Walter Corrigan, Milwaukee attorneys, would defend Herman L. Ekern before the state supreme court in an action to prevent him holding office as lieutenant governor.

Governor LaFollette appointed Ekern second in command at the capitol last week to fill the vacancy which has existed since last fall when Lieutenant Governor Henry Gunderson was named to the state tax commission.

Ekern must show cause May 31 why the supreme court should not take original jurisdiction in quo warranto proceedings brought by Attorney William E. Rubin, Milwaukee Democrat, who charged the governor had no power to fill the vacancy. If the high court sustains the suit Ekern must show "by what right" to hold office.

Says Pavement Is Faulty but Can be Fixed by Patching

Chicago Chemist Says It Was Folly to Do Work in Fall

Although he found considerable fault with the Colprovia pavement on College avenue and on Washington street, H. W. Skidmore of the Chicago Testing Laboratories, engaged by the city to make an analysis of the pavement, has suggested to the council that the pavement can be repaired by patching and that complete removal of the surfacing is not necessary. In many respects his report coincided with that made by Walter H. Flood, another Chicago engineer engaged by the city to test the materials, but they differed somewhat in their recommendations. Mr. Flood had recommended complete removal of all the new surfacing.

Both chemists found a large quantity of uncoated materials in the pavement, but Skidmore was unable to find the light oil solvent which Flood said was present in the samples he tested. Skidmore said in his report, however, that a sample he had seen in Mayor Goodland's office did have a "distinctly light distillate odor."

Rebuild Ravelled Top
After his examination of samples and inspection of the street, Skidmore recommended that where ever a ravelling of the wearing surface has occurred the ravelled surface should be removed to the binder course and replaced with new material, properly laid. If any binder is found defective, it also should be replaced. Skidmore said he did not consider resurfacing over badly ravelled areas with new topping would be adequate or reliable restitution.

An inspection of the areas used exclusively for parking on the avenue revealed only a few minor defects. He said it was natural that a pavement of the Colprovia type should show tire imprints if traffic had not passed over it and he recommended that the imprints be removed.

Action on Tax Bill to Be Announced Friday

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt, the White House said today, will announce his action on the tax revision bill at 2 o'clock p. m., eastern standard time, tomorrow during the course of his address at the Arthur Dale, W. Va., resettlement project.

(The message will be broadcast over a nationwide hookup starting at 1 o'clock p. m. C.S.T.)

The chief executive has until midnight tomorrow night to make known his decision on whether he has signed or vetoed the bill.

As assigned by congress the legislation is designed to ease provisions of the undistributed profits and capital gains levies as aids to business.

Some close to the White House expressed the belief the president was dissatisfied with some phases of it, but nevertheless would approve the measure and state his objections.

New Deal Opponents May Ask Senate to Censure Hopkins for Supporting Iowan
Washington—(P)—Anti-administration members considered today asking the senate to censure an informal endorsement by WPA administrator Harry Hopkins of Representative Oha Wearin's candidacy for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Iowa.

Senator Johnson (R-Calif.) was understood to be drafting a censure resolution after colleagues of Senator Gillette (D-Iowa), against whom Wearin is campaigning, angrily accused Hopkins of making a political weapon of the works progress administration.

Although Hopkins made no comment on the criticism voiced in the senate yesterday, he reiterated his intention to see that all WPA workers are free to vote as they wish.

TVA Director Hits Back at Ousted Chief

H. A. Morgan Accuses A. E. Morgan of 'Campaign Of Dissent'

READS STATEMENT

Says Former Chairman Went Beyond 'Proper Limits' in Opposition

Washington—(P)—David E. Lilienthal, Tennessee Valley authority director, testified before a congressional committee today that Arthur E. Morgan, former TVA chairman, tried to "defeat and obstruct the authority" in litigation involving its constitutionality.

Earlier, Harcourt A. Morgan, the other TVA director, told the 10-man investigating committee that Arthur Morgan conducted a "campaign of dissent and obstruction" to discredit the TVA program.

Presenting his testimony in a series of prepared statements, Lilienthal said the former chairman's efforts to obstruct the authority took place in litigation before a special court in Chattanooga.

He added that he would give details on that matter and "the conduct of Arthur Morgan in respect to the so-called Berry marble claims."

Before taking up the ousted director's charges in detail, Lilienthal expressed resentment that Dr. Morgan had more charges which were interpreted as "criminal corruption" on the part of the other two directors.

Washington—(P)—Harcourt A. Morgan, a Tennessee Valley authority director, charged today that former TVA Chairman A. E. Morgan conducted "a campaign of dissent and obstruction" to discredit the TVA program.

Testifying before a joint congressional inquiry committee, Harcourt Morgan, now TVA chairman, asserted that A. E. Morgan had gone beyond "proper limits" in disagreeing with other members of the TVA board and had "seriously obstructed the work of this agency of the federal government."

A. E. Morgan testified before the congressional committee yesterday, making lengthy charges of "collusion, conspiracy and mismanagement" against H. A. Morgan and the other TVA director, David E. Lilienthal.

June Milk Price Stays Unchanged

Department's Refusal to Reduce Prices Is Victory for Farmers

Madison—(P)—The price of milk in the Milwaukee milkshed during June will remain at 12 cents a quart to the consumer and $2.71 a hundredweight for the producer, Ralph E. Ammon, acting director of the state department of agriculture and markets, said today.

The department's refusal to cut prices under its stabilization order was a victory for the farmers who demanded that if any cut were necessary, it be shared proportionately by the producers, the dealers and the plant workers.

Ammon said the testimony at a hearing in Milwaukee Tuesday developed no consumer support of the proposal made by the dealers to cut the retail price to 11 cents a quart and reduce the producers' price to $2.25 a hundredweight.

The department had scheduled a meeting in Kenosha to discuss possible revision of the price order in effect there, but since Milwaukee prices will remain the same during June the Kenosha meeting has been cancelled.

Buckman Creditors' Meeting Is Postponed
Madison—(P)—Miles C. Riley, federal bankruptcy referee, today adjourned a meeting of creditors of B. E. Buckman and company, Madison securities dealer, to June 15 to permit further examination of the firm's books. There were no appearances today.

That statement was made last night in reply to a letter from Judge Brady M. Stewart of Louisville, who had written President Roosevelt that federal relief agencies were using "reprehensible" measures in support of Senator Barkley (D-Ky.) Stewart is campaign manager for Governor A. B. Chandler, Barkley's opponent in the August primary.

Declaring that Stewart's charges were general, Hopkins invited him to submit specific instances of political coercion, and added: "I have used every channel of communication available to make clear to employees and project workers of this administration that

One Pat O'Brien Is Suing Another for $250,000 Damages

Los Angeles—(P)—One Pat O'Brien sued another today for $250,000 damages.

Detroit's O'Brien, a free lance actor, alleged Milwaukee's O'Brien, the star, entered into a conspiracy to keep him from getting work.

Named as defendants with star O'Brien were Jimmie Fidler, radio commentator; Louella O. Parsons, newspaper columnist; and Warner Bros. Pictures, which employs the Milwaukee O'Brien.

Free lance O'Brien's action says the defendants asked movie producers not to hire him under his true name.

Army Strengthens Control in Tokio

Foreign, War and Finance Ministers Leave Japanese Cabinet

Tokio—(P)—Japan's foreign, war and finance ministers left the cabinet in a drastic reorganization by which the army appeared to have won a stronger grip on the government, with the likelihood that there likely now will be made a new and stronger effort to end the China conflict with quick victory.

The department ministers were Koki Hirota, foreign minister; General Gen Sugiyama, war; and Okunobu Kaya, finance.

Lieutenant General Seishiro Itagaki, who has been on the China front, becomes war minister. Hirota becomes minister of finance.

The new foreign minister is General Kazushige Ugaki.

Marquis Koichi Kido gave up his post as minister of education but remains in the cabinet in the newly created post of welfare minister.

General Baron Sadao Araki, a former minister of war who has predicted Japan one day may have to fight Russia as a "world menace," becomes education minister.

Postpone Opening Of Bids on Third Street Pavement

Aldermen Tentatively Approve 'Five-Mile' Paving Program Under PWA

In a meeting marked by constant interruptions and pointless arguments from the audience, the city council last night partially approved a proposed "five-mile" paving program under PWA and postponed opening bids on the Third street paving until next Wednesday.

A maze of argument between aldermen and Third street property owners and, in fact, anyone else who wanted to get into the game, confused the issue until no one knew what anyone wanted.

Mayor Goodland decided a tie vote on Alderman Keller's motion to postpone opening of bids until next Wednesday. Alderman Vander Heyden withdrew an earlier motion to open the bids and Alderman Thompson withdrew his motion to include Third street in the application for a PWA grant on the proposed paving program.

Two or three factions of Third street property owners had a busy evening telling the council how they wanted the street paved. One group wanted the paving started immediately, another group submitted a petition to wait for PWA aid.

Warehouse Receipts Case Trial Is Begun

Sheboygan—(P)—The state called two witnesses to the stand as it opened its case yesterday against three Milwaukeeans accused of violating the state securities law by sales of whisky warehouse receipts.

The defendants, Robert C. and William F. Unger and Attorney Samuel Pack, have waived a jury and are being tried before Circuit Judge Arnold Morgan.

Harold W. Westover, first witness and former salesman for Unger and associates, testified that Minnie Mohr received $500 in cash and nearly $5,000 worth of New Era Distributing company stock when he was questioned regarding the handling of customers who wished to exercise their option of getting their money back for receipts purchased. The New Era is a soap company of which the Ungers are incorporators.

E. C. Peterson, also a former salesman, testified a guaranteed optional income was offered by the whisky warehouse receipt selling plan. He said that in the purchase of a barrel of whisky for $86.60 the guaranteed income was $16.90 every six months; or the income was $6.50 every six months when the purchase price was $75.50.

The purchase of the receipt, Peterson told the court, did not give the customer the right to get the liquor.

11 Individuals Also Would Enter 'Nolo Contendere' Pleas

UP TO U. S. JUDGE
Defendants Also to Pay Costs if Stone Gives Approval

Washington—(P)—Fourteen oil companies and 11 individuals accused of violating the anti-trust laws offered yesterday, the justice department announced, to pay $400,000 in fines and court costs if pleas of "nolo contendere" were accepted.

The oil firms are among the 22 companies scheduled to go on trial at Madison, Wis. Sept. 26 on charges of entering into unlawful agreements to fix margins of profit for midwestern gasoline jobbers.

Attorney General Cummings and Thurman Arnold, chief of the department's anti-trust division, said in a joint statement that the government would accept the offer if Federal Judge Patrick D. Stone approved. It will be submitted to him at Madison June 2.

Would Forego Trial
A plea of nolo contendere means that defendant is willing to forego trial and accept penalties. It involves no confession of guilt, but Cummings described the proposal as "amounting virtually to pleas of guilty."

Acceptance of the pleas and dismissal of the indictments would leave eight oil firms and eight of their executives to stand trial at Madison in September. Cummings said these companies and their officials would be prosecuted "vigorously."

Cummings said the offer included the maximum fines which might be assessed if the companies were found guilty "and may be regarded as a complete capitulation on their part."

The companies and their executives who have agreed to pay the fines, Cummings said, were:

$13,457 Found by Searchers in Home Of Dead Recluse

Minnesota Junction, Wis.—(P)—Two boxes containing $13,457 in bills and gold coins were found yesterday under piles of paper beneath a coal stove in the home of Herman Raabe, 74-year-old recluse who died Tuesday.

The discovery climaxed a search of the cobwebbed dwelling by neighbors under supervision of Sheriff Walter Buschkopf and District Attorney Kenneth E. Port of Dodge county.

A cursory check of Raabe's possessions Tuesday had disclosed records showing he had nearly $10,000 on deposit in Juneau and Horicon banks, and $30,000 worth of mortgages, notes and land contracts. But the neighbors weren't satisfied that was the extent of Raabe's fortune.

"There must be lots more," they told authorities, and the search was organized.

Sheriff Buschkopf was appointed special administrator of Raabe's estate by County Judge W. C. O'Connell.

Raabe had lived alone since the death of his wife 12 years ago. He was a native of Germany, and has relatives living there, townsfolk say.

250 Killed, 1,000 Hurt in Most Disastrous Air Raid Of Civil Warfare in Spain

Market Place Bombed as Hundreds of Women Wait to Buy Food

Alicante, Spain—(P)—Rescuers dug steadily today in the ruins of Alicante's shattered market place, extricating victims of yesterday's most disastrous single air bombardment of the Spanish civil war. At least 250 persons were killed and 1,000 injured when six huge insurgent bombing planes circled suddenly in the sky and dropped their missiles squarely in the market place where hundreds of women waited in queues to buy food.

The thundering detonations toppled towering masonry into dust-outs in which men, women and children had crowded for refuge. Bodies tangled, torn and mangled.

The casualties in the city of 70,000, which is 130 miles south of Valencia, far exceeded in proportion the disastrous series of air raids in March upon Barcelona, a city of more than 1,000,000, when there were 3,000 fatalities.

More than 100 of the victims were found in the market place alone. Outside Alicante 50 were killed and hundreds injured.

Alicante caught the brunt of insurgent air attacks in which more than 100 heavy bombers shuttled back and forth all day yesterday from the island base of Mallorca to government coastal cities and towns, unleashing explosives.

Bombing Shot Down
Sagunto, most-raided government-held city near the coast, was visited by 38 bombers which dropped 95 missiles into the town. Thirty casualties were reported and 40 buildings were destroyed and 90 others damaged.

Nearby villages of Estivella, Gil-et, Algimia de Alfara and Albalat de Segart were bombed. One of the bombers was shot down into the sea.

Castellon was attacked in another raid and many buildings destroyed but no casualties reported. The 1,250-ton British freighter Thorpehall was sunk with 3,000 tons of wheat in Valencia harbor. All the crew was saved though three sailors were injured.

Dozens of other villages along the coast were bombed.

4 Confess Guilt In Liquor Case; 13 Plead Innocent

2 Other Defendants Discharged and Cases of 2 are Deferred

Milwaukee—(P)—Four of 21 defendants indicted in February, 1936, as members of a Wisconsin liquor ring, pleaded guilty in federal court before Judge F. A. Geiger today. Thirteen others pleaded innocent, two defendants were discharged, and cases of two others were deferred.

Pleas of guilty were entered by William and Otto Kurth, brothers, and Fred Jewson, all of Fond du Lac, and Ed Hintz, a Wood county farmer. Sentences were deferred upon request of E. J. Koelzer, assistant United States district attorney, until next Wednesday, when trials of the remaining defendants are to start.

Also upon motion by Koelzer, the cases of William Jaeger, Chicago, and William Kamsenbach, were dismissed. Kamsenbach died after indictment was returned. Koelzer said the government had insufficient evidence against Jaeger, division manager for a St. Louis brewery. Jaeger claimed that in selling 2,000 pounds of yeast to the other defendants, he had no knowledge of its intended use, Koelzer said.

Two In Prison
Because two defendants, Al Meyers and Joseph Digirolamo, are now in prison, their cases were deferred by Nick Abokovics and Martha, his wife, formerly of Milwaukee and now of Waupun. Ben Schilbach, Philip Kluck, Florian Kluck, Hubert Kluck, John Marino, James Valenti, Joseph Androna, William Vanderkink, Henry Vandergaard, Rudy Kaisted and Barney Baranowski.

The government charges that a liquor ring sold more than 100,000 gallons of illicit alcohol between 1932 and 1934, until four stills operated in Wood, Dodge and Marquette counties were seized by federal agents C. H. Carr, a special assistant attorney general of Washington, D. C. was here to prosecute the case.

In an extensive report action Fred Cavelli, Kenosha, Wis., was fined $50 by Judge Geiger when he pleaded guilty to operating an illegal still of 500-gallon capacity on a Walworth county farm Feb. 18, 1937.

Judge Geiger dismissed at Koelzer's motion, charges against three men accused in an indictment of transporting stolen bonds from Chicago to Milwaukee. The bonds valued at $10,000, were stated in indictment to have been stolen from Moses Klein, Chicago. The defendants were Gaston Goldman.

Postpone Opening Of Bids on Third Street Paving

92 St. Therese Pupils to Approach 1st Communion

and still another group, it was maintained on the floor, wanted the street paved in any event but would prefer PWA help.

The decision of property owners prompted postponement when six aldermen and the mayor decided to wait until next week to allow property owners time to get accurate petitions showing the wishes of people living on Third street.

The proposed "five-mile" paving program was tentatively approved pending the decision on whether to pave Third street with or without PWA aid. If the property owners decide to wait, the street will be included in the program next week.

The paving program includes a number of streets which were included in a previous application for a federal grant, with the exception of several streets which have since been paved by the city. Several other streets have been added to the program.

The widening of Oneida street from the railroad tracks to Wisconsin avenue was dropped from the program by an unanimous vote. Aldermen Harriman, Thompson and Kubitz argued that Oneida street property owners objected to the widening project when it was proposed last year and maintained that they still felt the same way.

Appointment Attendants
Marion Foster, 914 N. Drew street, and James Bailey, 535 N. Meade street, were appointed as attendants at the municipal swimming pool for the summer at $50 and $60 per month respectively. Aldermen Brautigam, Knutti, McGillan and Vanderheyden opposed the appointments.

A recommendation of the recreational committee to buy 8-foot cyclone fence for Spencer street athletic field was approved and the city clerk was authorized to advertise for bids. The council also adopted the swimming pool regulations for the year and authorized necessary repairs at the pool.

The sum of $450, received from the sale of the old Zuehlke home on Prospect avenue and credited to the general fund, was transferred to the park fund by an unanimous vote. Transfer of the money was requested by the park board in a letter to the council.

An amendment to the general city ordinances limiting parking to 90 minutes on S. State street from College avenue to the alley was ordered published.

An application for a picnic license, filed by the Employers Mutual Benefit association, was referred to the police and license committee. The association asked for the use of Erb park June 25.

Mayor Goodland re-appointed John F. Woehler to the board of

Czechs Studying Franco - British Peace Proposals

Suggestions are Intended To Terminate Crisis In Europe

Praha—(P)—The Czechoslovak government today studied new French and British suggestions designed to terminate the crisis arising from the demands of the Sudeten German minority and Adolf Hitler's "protectorate" over them.

Stefan Ossusky, minister to Paris, arrived last night by plane and reported at once to Foreign Minister Kamil Krofta. They conferred again today.

Jan Masaryk, minister to London, returned by air this afternoon to confer with both Krofta and President Eduard Benes.

It was understood that both Ossusky and Masaryk brought renewed assurances of Anglo-French support but these were accompanied by undiminished emphasis on the necessity of a concession to the Sudetens whom the German fuhrer had said he would protect from "suffering."

Suggest Observers
In London it was reported Britain had sounded out both Germany and Czechoslovakia on a plan to place British observers in their troubled border region as a means of easing tension and giving Britain unbiased reports to guide her peace-making efforts.

Diplomatic quarters in Praha expressed satisfaction with the way the government handled yesterday's difficult situation at Eger when two Sudetens, killed last Saturday by border guards, were given a demonstrative Nazi funeral.

Despite the aggressive tone of funeral speeches by two Sudeten deputies, Karl Hermann Frank and Ernst Proegner, it was hoped that another meeting between the Sudeten fuhrer, Konrad Henlein, and Premier Milan Hodza could be arranged before the weekend.

Officials also were pleased by the comparatively calm progress of German - Czechoslovak diplomatic exchanges. German Minister Ernst Eisenlohr has visited the foreign office almost daily in the last four days and thus far he and Krofta have managed to keep the conversations on a fairly friendly basis.

When Eisenlohr, for example, called Praha's attention to violation of German borders by Czechoslovak military planes, citing three specific instances, Krofta assured him the government had taken measures to prevent recurrence of such incidents.

But at the same time Krofta called Eisenlohr's attention to 14 specific instances of violation of the Czechoslovak frontier by German military planes.

The result, according to Czechoslovak sources, was a friendly agreement that such incidents sometimes were unavoidable at a time like this and should be subject to friendly arrangements.

Hoping for the best but preparing for the worst, Czechoslovakia continued preparations for defense.

Charles P. Howard Far Behind in Race For Union Office

Indianapolis—(P)—Charles P. Howard of Chicago, president of the International Typographical union, lagged far behind today in his race for reelection against his vice president, Claude M. Baker of San Francisco.

Incomplete returns from 64 cities gave Baker 15,401 and Howard 8,713. Union members admitted freely that the election brought to a climax internal strife between two factions. One favored American Federation of Labor policies and the other was for the Committee for Industrial Organization, headed by John L. Lewis.

The I. T. U. is affiliated with the A. F. of L. and Howard, while president of the printers, became secretary of the CIO. He had criticized frequently A. F. of L. President William Green's policies.

An international official said voting would continue until noon today. Locals will send sealed returns to international headquarters in Indianapolis to be opened and tallied by a canvassing board June 6.

Most of the larger cities reporting tabulations returned large majorities for Baker while the smaller locals favored Howard.

$234,000 Road Work Approved

President Authorizes WPA Project in Forest County

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington — The president has approved a $234,640 WPA project for the county-wide improvement of county-owned roads in Forest county and also one for $26,708 in the town of Peshtigo, Marinette county, Congressman George J. Schneider, Appleton, announces.

The Peshtigo project covers improvements to public thoroughfares through the city, including construction of curbs, gutters, sidewalks, and also grading, shaping terraces, and installing draining facilities.

Under the Forest county road improvements will be included excavating, draining, brushing, surfacing, installing culverts, and other necessary work. These roads are not a part of the federal aid highway system.

Upon final clearance by the comptroller general the above projects will become eligible for operation at the discretion of Philip Flanner, state WPA administrator.

Tourist Declares Trailer Travel Has Its Drawbacks

BY CARL W. MASON
Oklahoma City, Okla. — One of the unforeseen drawbacks of the idyllic trailer life along the inviting highways and in the grand open spaces is the frequent difficulty in securing repairs and replacements in case of accident. Mishaps just seem to pick out the most unlikely places to occur. With trailering fairly general for several years and with many hundreds of thousands of nomad homes now on the roads, it is surprising to find that trailer service and supply have not kept pace with the new mode of portable house keeping.

The foregoing fact has been impressed upon me several times since I took to the carefree life of which the modern poets sing — that is when they stay comfortably at home and poeize over the alluring picture they see from a distance. The latest and most distressing incident occurred several days ago as I was leaving Norman, Okla., prepared to spend a pleasant day here in Oklahoma's booming capital of 200,000. On a creek bridge three miles from the town, I was passing a car approaching me when suddenly a sedan piloted by a woman shot out from behind the other evidently trying to pass. Like Casey Jones' No. 4 she stared me right in the face and it was impossible to avoid the bump. Both sheered away but she side-swiped both my car and trailer, jamming down a rear mudguard and hub cap and gouging out a corner and part of one side of the trailer. We spent the night at Norman where we easily obtained car repairs but the trailer was another matter. The only local plant at all suitable in that University of Oklahoma city of 15,000 was unable to handle the job so, after delays there, I rolled on to Oklahoma City. Surely the problem would vanish here. Inquiry sent me to a large body and trailer works and I crossed the city to find it only to be informed that its trailer work was all metal (my trailer isn't metal) and I was advised to seek somewhere else. At last I found the sought-for plant and a bargain — was struck. That was the middle of Friday afternoon. Now, Sunday night, it is expected repairs will be completed tomorrow and we can continue our odyssey with as much rejoicing as poignant memories of the immediate past and forebodings for the future will permit.

Matching Color
The matter of matching color is another problem the new trailerite does not sense. When I sallied forth in all the glory of my new vehicle shining with the "stratosphere blue" that has attracted so much admiration the dealers assured me that in case of need I could match that "standard" color anywhere with the greatest of ease. I have been searching for a small quantity of the special lacquer that adorns my trailer and have been vainly visiting paint stores and paint shops over much of Texas. The only place I found that sold this color had only large cans at a prohibitive price, whereas all I needed was a few spoonfuls for touch-up where the ruthless salt air of the Gulf had gotten in its deadly work. One shop in the Rio Grande valley sold me a small amount of lacquer and a high-priced brush, but when I joyfully set out to cover the few annoying rust spots around the metal windows I discovered I had been cruelly swindled, had been sold a quick drying spray lacquer that dried so rapidly that it streaked and was entirely useless for my purpose. And the brush was a limp liner brush and useless for my needs.

No trailer, to be safe and secure, should have less than 6-ply tires. Yet I have been able to secure 6-ply only in the larger towns. I have sustained the suffering of seeing three 4-ply tires blow out on the trailer since leaving New London, Oct. 15. The first time disaster came I was near a small country town and 50 miles from a city so had to take a 4-ply tire which later blew out.

The next time a tire blew I had to drive 32 miles to Corpus Christi to get an adjustment and a 6-ply tire—32 miles back and a hot day. The third blowout necessitated only 26 miles of extra driving with no adjustment, no 6-ply tires of my make on hand so I was forced to buy another brand and lay out $22.50 on the profit and loss account for new equipment.

Must Expect Trouble
Well, I'll stop this painful enumeration lest someone suspect I am pessimistic. I am not. Traveling always connotes some grief. I am merely trying to furnish some advance experience and caution for my less informed brethren as they blissfully contemplate or blithely set forth for the Elysian fields of romance that only a trailer can reach.

State police who came to the scene of my late accident assured me that the drivers in this commonwealth are "crazy" and that they have an alarming number of accidents to deal with. Oklahoma is the youngest state in the union, there are still many primitive traces and, with the boom in oil and other rushing pioneer features, it may be that the reckless spirit of the frontier is more in evidence than in more sedate regions.

The torrential rains such as that tonight wash the sticky red mud over the pavements and increase the dangers of driving. Oil, oil everywhere. The city often reeks with it. Tall oil derricks rise throughout much of the city and sometimes seem trying to crowd a house off its lot. The state capitol grounds a short distance from our garage bristles with the towering metal structures.

Just before leaving Texas we enjoyed some pleasant visits with sevdon city clerk, and family. Mr. Thompson operates a farm and a garage business there. His mother, Mrs. Mary Thompson, who resided at New London many years, also lives there and owns some promising oil prospects. Mrs. Jessie Williams, also a former New Londoner, lives nearby at Tyler and her brothers, Edward, Alvin and Morris Thompson, likewise are residents of Texas, having gone there some years ago from New London.

now but actually King Charles II practiced it nearly 300 years ago. Finding it urgently necessary in 1664 to improve his navy for the coming war with the Dutch, he toured the ports, speaking encouragement to the shipbuilders.

He borrowed $500,000, put another three and a half million with it—and re-equipped his whole fleet for less than half the cost of one modern battleship.

Esperanto, an artificial language, was originated in 1887 by Dr. Zamenhof, a Russian physician.

GRADUALLY EDGING INTO THE QUARREL

Until the President's Chicago address of last summer, justly called his War Address, when he exhibited a belligerent attitude and practically promised the world he was going to fix up the Chinese war overnight, we had been attending pretty much to our own business.

The American people, like peoples everywhere unless restrained by their own governments, have a perfect right to discuss and criticize national policies elsewhere. This is evident throughout the newspapers and periodicals in every free land. Seldom is there any complaint at such criticism excepting when it is to be found in articles appearing in a government inspired or controlled press, and then only because the articles are known to be written at the direction of the government.

But in this particular, and for evident reasons, rulers have not the same freedom of expression as individuals.

So when Secretary Ickes recommends to Great Britain, as he did a short time ago in a radio address, that democracies come closer together in order to offset the "ominous and bodeful phalanx" of dictatorships, he is committing America in a way that may be very unsuitable and unpleasant to the American people.

He is giving European democracies to understand, and their people to expect, that when the clash comes in Europe again we will be there to save democracy as of yore, but to save it for what may not be so plain.

Secretary Ickes was followed by our Kansas Secretary of War who publicly warned the dictators to watch their step else they might awaken on the battlefield with democracy having them down. Mr. Woodring mentioned Germany, Italy and Japan by name.

The fact is that Mr. Woodring as an individual may give such an opinion but Mr. Woodring is not an individual. He is our Secretary of War. And as such a public official it was highly indiscreet for him to imply that the democracies were planning to get the totalitarian states onto the battlefield and give them a good licking.

The people of France and Britain may be expected to leap to the same conclusion from these warlike addresses of Messrs. Roosevelt, Ickes and Woodring that came to the mind of Mussolini, for the Italian leader struck back by declaring that if these democracies wanted a war on the basis of what he called "doctrine" they could have it any time. Anger at America was just as well registered in Japan and Germany at these immature and unprovoked addresses as in Italy.

All such speeches by the leaders of our government are worthless and yet harmful in that they accomplish absolutely nothing for us, roll already muddy waters still more, create convulsions, or at least expectation, abroad, that may lead other nations astray and tend to pull America from its safe moorings in the Western Hemisphere.

What can accrue these men in telling the world that America has a chip on its shoulder? Where do we gain? What advantage accrues to us, or for that matter to anyone, from this Kaiseristic sword rattling?

The taunts, threats and vituperative references that have been echoing around the European cockpit have tended to embitter people already too bitter. Their natural effect is to overcome that conciliatory attitude that marks the intelligent nation and should everywhere be evident in councils of state. For us to join in this general moan of yelling and catcalling approaches the stupid antics someone can think of a single advantage to a single American from this policy.

LET'S BUILD SOME MORE RAILROADS

The congressional committee has recommended to congress that in the spending of the new billions the PWA should be prohibited from financing any project that would "compete with any existing privately owned or operated public utility, the rates of which are now subject to public regulation."

For stark fairness the provision could not be improved. But that is not necessarily a good political standard. Those who have chased utilities all over the land, the good as well as the bad, do not like to let go. They want to do some crushing.

But what good does the nation gain by loaning money to a municipality with which to build another utility when it already has the right to fix the rates of the utility in existence? If it is logical to do any such thing as that then we should embark upon a broad and extensive program of building more railroads. The fact that those we have are down in the dust, and largely because politics put them there, or that their rates are subject to public regulation and the politicians won't let them earn enough to live, should not interfere with a great, buzzing, building boom.

We can find places to get a few more railroads in even around this territory.

If that happens to sound crazy to the reader let him examine and find where-in it is any different in principle or in practice from the proposal to use government funds to duplicate existing utilities.

WISCONSIN AND ARBITRARY POWER

Not long ago the state code commissioner by attorney went before a circuit court in Milwaukee with a sworn complaint that 24 Milwaukee cleaning and dyeing dealers were delinquent in their code assessments and asked for and received an order of injunction restraining them from further continuing in business.

Immediately after the service of the papers, according to Judge Schinz who presided in the matter, the laundriers, dyers and dry cleaners began streaking to court showing their receipts, claiming they were not delinquent and that the state authorities were, to put it softly, off their base. Judge Schinz went into the matter sufficiently though hurriedly to become convinced, as he put it, that "the state books are a mess and until clean cut cases can be presented by code authorities there will be no restraining orders." He likewise observed, which should be self-evident, that "such loose methods are an unwarranted reflection on reputable business men who are irreparably damaged by such actions."

The Madison department immediately denied slovenly bookkeeping methods but admitted the existence of some "errors" and that the injunction in some instances was not warranted.

To arrive at a dependable conclusion in the manner so far adopted in these cases is impossible. Without the purpose of reflecting prematurely upon anyone it may be pretty safely asserted nevertheless that both the code authority and the judge were greatly to blame and followed a practice that should be immediately abandoned.

There is no sense in the code authority asking for an order putting any concern out of business prior to giving it a hearing. There is as little sense in a judge, particularly a circuit judge, signing such an order without a hearing.

The fact that apparently responsible business houses such as established laundries and the like are claimed to be delinquent in the payment of dues should raise in every judge's mind the caution that it were better not to put them out of business, not to make it necessary for them to dismiss their employees and pull their fires, without at least asking them why they were behind time. This is no place for temporary restraining orders. Such orders under the circumstances were not only arbitrary, as demonstrated by the results, but high-handed.

The Wisconsin legislature gave the courts practical superintendence over the code authorities because it wisely expected them in the usual judicial manner to get at the truth instead of accepting the conclusions of those whom we must classify as bureaucrats.

Opinions Of Others

A THREAT THAT MISSED

Last week Texas entertained Fiorelli H. La Guardia, the picturesque mayor of New York city, and the occasion was a happy one until the mayor undertook to address the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention in Wichita Falls. It was a happy one even then, of course, except that the mayor began to talk about potatoes and revealed to his listeners that an insinuating personality does not necessarily make an economist. The burden of the mayor's remarks was Texas's bid for industrial growth, which he deplored; he defended the industrial status quo and wangled a warning finger, declaring candidly that if Texas persisted in seeking manufacturing enterprises—well, New York would begin growing potatoes. The reaction of his audience—which consumes potatoes in great abundance but produces scarcely any—can easily be imagined.

In the city of which Mr. La Guardia is mayor one of its leading newspapers publishes a volume each year which is known as "The World Almanac." In this valuable reference book is a great deal of information about a lot of things, including potatoes, and it shows that in 1935, the most recent year in which such statistics were compiled, New York state produced 27,830,000 bushels of white potatoes, and Texas, which is five times the size of New York and has three times the farm population of New York, produced during the same year only 3,017,200 bushels of potatoes. Thus New York is producing nearly nine bushels of potatoes for every one bushel produced in Texas. Texas grows only a half-bushel of potatoes for each of its inhabitants every year, and the average for the country as a whole is more than three bushels for each inhabitant every year. Consequently, Texas not only does not export potatoes to other states, but it imports potatoes heavily from other states, and what New York might do to Texas if it "begins growing potatoes" is not precisely the dire prospect which the mayor intended.—Texas Weekly.

After an epidemic of typhoid in Croydon, England, 100 damage suits have been filed against the municipality for loss of relatives and business.

OH OH... "FRENCH ASK U. S. TO HELP AVERT CZECH-NAZI WAR..." so said a morning paper yesterday... oh dear, oh dear... oh, double-dear... it's too, too, terrible... my feet are getting flatter... my eyes are falling by the minute... "French ask..." quick, somebody send all the American ambassadors, ministers and consular employes home... SEND 'EM HOME QUICK... "French ask..." golly, somebody has to do something without fail!

MAYBE WED BOTH BETTER GO

Jonah:
Get out Here I come. I DO know that it would get you good to go to church on Sunday. It would help you get rid of your cracked ideas. I DO know that some golfers have quit the Municipal because of congested conditions—sorta disgusted. And I DO know that if the National League keeps on using that "dead" ball, there won't be any pitchers left by fall. But I DON'T know anything about the future of the new party. Phil ain't been over recently. The sucker didn't even ask me before he launched the party. And am I mad!

—LaFollette Progressive

Well, he was in town last week, smarty.

Add figures of speech: in as much trouble as a comic strip hero.

SPEAKING HER MIND

Jonah:
It's plain to be seen that Senator Dempsey doesn't hobnob with the members of organized labor. Actually, half of the members of labor unions would quit in a second if they didn't know that their chances of getting (or holding) a job are nil if they didn't belong to the union.

It's also very plain that F.D.R. never tried to feed and clothe a family on the proceeds from a job paying 40c an hour and a 40 hour week.

—A Union Member's Wife

F.D.R. has never had to worry about feeding and clothing anyone. He's never had to worry about working and has had little experience with any kind of a job except on the public payroll. This, of course, gives him the background and wisdom necessary to pass out all the answers.

And yet how many insurance salesmen would like to have him for a father!

An advice-to-the-puzzled editor says that the best way for a wife to tame a hollering husband is to holler louder herself. Maybe so, maybe not. But the shock of a pained silence on the part of the female is usually more than enough to make the old man quiet down.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

TO A TEACHER

Although we say good-bye to you,
We know that for a lifetime through,
All you have taught us will remain
To light with hope Life's reaching plain.
The memory of you will stay
With us though you are far away.
Your gentle voice, your quiet words
Will fly to us like homing birds.
Your many acts of kindness,
Your wisdom in the long day's stress,
Will linger in our memory!
Your patience and your sympathy,
The problems you have understood,
Your influence, far-reaching, good,
These we will keep though you depart!
... You have a shrine in every heart!

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Thursday, May 24, 1928
Dr. Wilson S. Naylor, dean of men at Lawrence college, was to be the principal speaker at the Memorial day exercises here Wednesday morning. W. H. Zuehlke was chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

Plans for a large addition to the Appleton Coated Paper company plant were being completed and work was expected to begin within the next month, according to an announcement by Charles Boyd, general manager. The addition was to be 240 feet long, 105 feet wide and 100 feet high.

Onaway camp leaders met at the Y.M.C.A. the previous evening to discuss the camp program for the summer. Leaders were J. W. Pugh, A. P. Jensen, Michael Gochner, John Framp-ton, Roger Russell, Lester Maxson, John Lons-dor, Ted Bolton, Robert Ziegler, Chester Thie-dor, Robert Mader, Charles Earle, Norman Zan-zig, Robert Marston, Horace Davis, John Reeve, Lloyd Townsend, John Deoherty and William Scott.

Donald Mathewson, Hortonville, was elected chairman of the Outagamie county council of the American Legion at a regular meeting the previous evening at Hortonville. Other officers elected were: Matthew Reybenau, Little Chute, vice chairman; Oscar Ehke, Kimberly, treasurer; Alfred C. Bossier, Appleton, secretary.

25 YEARS AGO

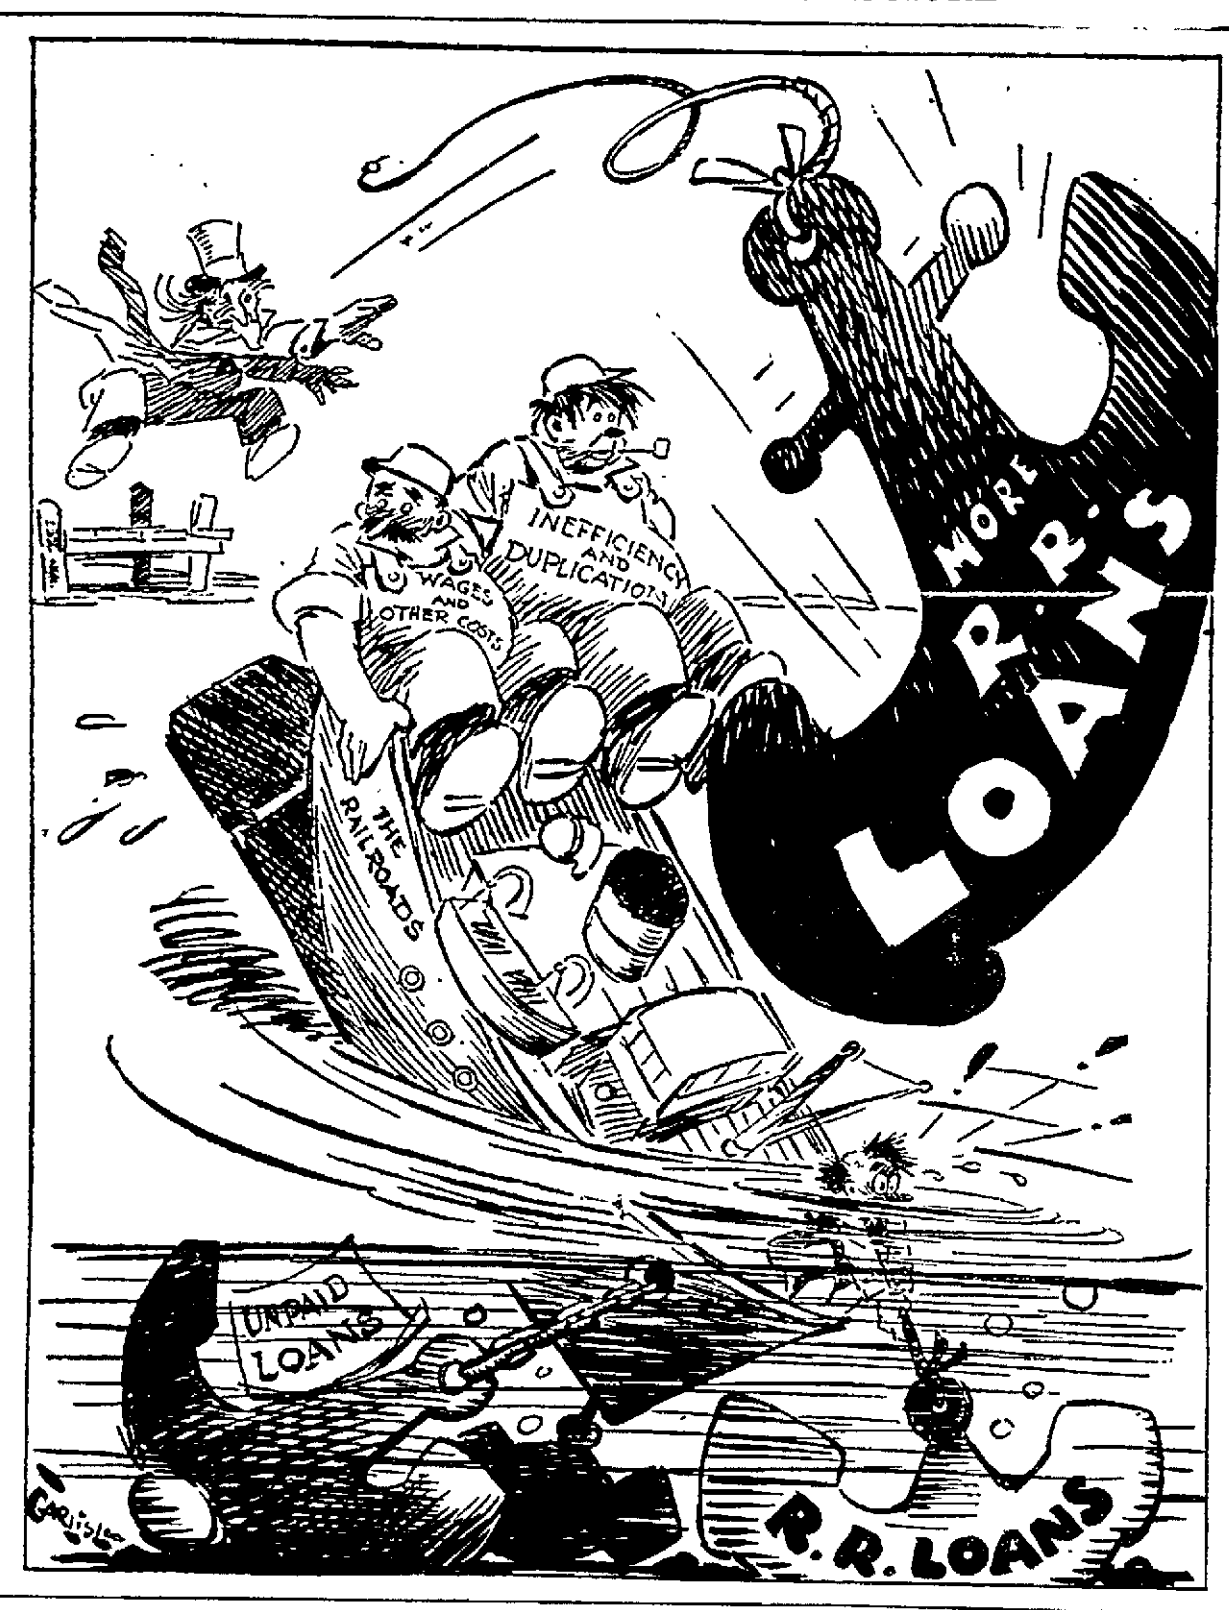

Thursday, May 29, 1913
Between 250 and 300 motorcycle riders were expected in Appleton the following Saturday for an endurance run the day following.

At the weekly bridge tournament at the Elks club the evening previous honors were won by R. J. Meyer, Fred Petersen and James A. Wood.

The graduating class of the Third district school which was to receive its diplomas on June 5 consisted of Elmer Boettcher, Gordon Fish, Gretchen Johnson, Josephine Johnson, Horace Kellogg, Herbert Kichenore, Karl Kaphingst, Veda Lockery, Alma Miller, Karl Muench, George Peotter, Dorothy Pierce, Harvey Pierre, Emery Rusch, Walter Rutz, Elsie Schmidt, Lila Schneider, Benjamin Shimek, Herbert Schmiede, Mabel Westphal, Herbert Wickesberg and Mildred Zuehlke.

Herman J. Schlegel was adding a foundry to his plant on Morrison street which when completed will enable him to turn out 500 Badger hot air furnaces a year.

HELPING THE RAILROADS SOME MORE

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

HYPOGLYCEMIA

Practically all food which provides the energy necessary to work, play or exercise in any way is converted by digestion into glucose and stored in the liver and in the muscles in the form of "animal starch," glycogen, until it is needed. This glycogen is quickly converted into glucose (blood sugar) when fuel is needed. The amount of sugar present in the blood remains constantly at a certain level—from .08 per cent in a fasting person to .18 per cent after a hearty meal or after a gorge on ice cream, candy or other sweet. In other words the blood of a normal individual contains approximately 2-3rds of an ounce of sugar at all times, sugar ready for immediate use. In reserve behind this trigger quick energy is the much larger quantity of glycogen stored in the liver and muscles.

It is now fairly well known that contestants in a Marathon race, in a long swim or any other test of endurance are less likely to collapse or lose consciousness or become helpless with exhaustion if they get some form of sugar along the way—say well sweetened tea or other sweetened beverage, milk, even very sweet fruit juice, candy, milk chocolate or any food in which starch or sugar is a large ingredient. That is because the extraordinary physical effort rapidly uses up the sugar in the blood and the sugar freshly formed by conversion of the available glycogen. After this, if the demand for energy continues, when the blood sugar level is very low, collapse is inevitable unless some more sugar can be quickly obtained.

Now some individuals who take no exercise at all to speak of nevertheless have spells or seizures due to hypoglycemia, low blood sugar. Without attempting to account for such spells now, we may say simply that such functional hypoglycemia sometimes produces singular effects. Sudden inexplicable exhaustion, perhaps accompanied by a mental hiatus or even a momentary loss of consciousness, not unlike the typical seizure of petit mal (minor epilepsy). Or in other instances the hypoglycemia manifests itself merely as an extreme sense of weariness or fatigue or inability to carry on, felt along toward the tag end of the forenoon, or the afternoon, that is, three hours or more after the last meal.

Thousands of people who have mild hypoglycemia of this type make the serious mistake of resorting to alcohol, tobacco or even drugs to "tide over" or to dull consciousness of the warning. The remedy best adapted to prevent and cure hypoglycemia is, of course, sugar. Food, Milk, Fruit juice, Candy, Chocolate bar, Sandwich, Ice cream, Crackers, Bread and butter. It doesn't matter what carbohydrate you prefer or can get; you don't go more than four hours without some such genuine pick-me-up. This applies especially in case you are trying to control overweight by diet—you will have more success with any reducing regimen if you can manage to avoid hypoglycemia.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Give a Dog a Bad Name
Is there a type of Streptococcus which enters the palm surface of the hand and burrows thru to the back surface? (M. F. G.)

Answer—Any infection of the palm may burrow either up thru the arm or toward the back of hand or wrist. Streptococcus is notorious for its tendency to spread without inducing a reaction in the tissues which would tend to limit the infection to a restricted area.

Diatomy for Hypertrophic Turbinate

Would it be wise or feasible to use diatomy for enlarged turbinates obstructing the nasal passage? (M. L.)

Answer—Yes, a physician skilled in surgical diatomy can shrink hypertrophied turbinates by submucous electro-decatheterization, without removing or destroying any of the mucous membrane which is so important for comfortable function.

Do violet ray treatments cause hair to grow on a woman's face? (L. O. F.)

Answer—If you mean ultraviolet light (invisible or without color), no.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER
New York — With the summer cruises on and the gypsies taking to the open road, being a reporter in the largest town in the world at the moment is largely a matter of going through the morning's mail. Adventurers, beach-combers, expatriates, lecturers, authors, actors, and engineers—all are departing for remote havens—well, almost all. So to the mail basket!

"After two weeks of Paris I long for Spain, where you'd never guess there was a war, if you kept away from the barbed wire," writes J. H. Madden, who once sailed around Ireland in an 18-foot canoe.

"Paris is franc-crazed and people are bored but the food continues excellent. Yesterday I saw the white-haired poet, Richard LeGallienne, and also Georges Carpentier, who looks as trim as when he fought Dempsey."

In a bold scrawl, Sam Blake admits that the "smallest newspaper in the world is the Bimini Bugle, published at Bimini, Bahamas, and edited by Roderick H. Bellair. It's 41 by 51 and there's other foreign newspapers in the West Point Lounger of the Hotel Piccadilly. If you're interested."

Joe Heidt, of the Theater Guild, ambles in with a note from Eugene O'Neill: "Please emphatically deny that I have any intentions of breaking with the Guild or producing cycle (of plays) myself. The report is nonsense. My first two plays are already under contract to the Guild and I discussed plans for production of whole cycle with Theresa Helburn and Lawrence Langner when they were out here and since then by letter Deepdyke's secret rumor. Guild has always been fine to me as a producer. Its members are my personal friends and my one feeling is of grateful loyalty to the organization and absolute confidence in it."

Meanwhile, Albert Kornfeld wanders past this observer's look-out with perhaps the most amusing letter of all... It is a shriek in the night... for Lelo... It seems Alexander Woolcott, "the talented busybody," made a rash wager with a lady and lost... His appeal, addressed to Vogue, follows:

Your Birthday

"GEMINI"
If May 27 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. until 12:30 p. m.; from 2:30 p. m. until 4:30 p. m.; from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m.; from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m.; and from 10:30 p. m. until midnight.

You may find this day filled with many strange coincidences, some of which are apt to be amusing or very pleasing. You are likely to find one of your wishes fulfilled in an unexpected manner. This day should be profitable in regard to wisdom or money. Trace rumors to their source before accepting them as true. Many a careless thought will wag too freely for safety's sake, so it will be good judgment to talk discreetly. Make sharp methods are likely to impede progressive measures. This is perhaps a poor day to start anything that you are not sure you will be able to finish, for incomplete work seems bound to bring about a good deal of unfriendly criticism. Be careful you do not put yourself in the position of being compelled to decline doing a favor. Married and engaged couples, and those whose matrimonial prospects are growing brighter must avoid appearing to be dominating this day, if they wish to avoid arousing an embarrassing display of temper.

If a woman and May 27 is your birthday, flattery is a tonic you apparently enjoy very much. You may be too reluctant to accept favors, with the result that your friends and admirers might grow tired trying to do things for you. This day's experiences should prevent your making mistakes tomorrow. You, in all likelihood, find domestic routine tiresome and require some outside interest necessary to keep you contented. You are probably of a very artistic temperament, and may make use of it in a profitable way. Teaching, singing, lecturing, demonstrating, selling, writing, acting or a musical career seem to be among the activities in which you can engage successfully. Through mar-

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER
Washington — In time the Supreme Court justices will occupy the new $11,000,000 Supreme Court building.

The court began holding its formal sessions in the new court room about two years ago and performed there its famed liberal change of front. But most of the judges refused to occupy their chambers.

For long years while they "fit and bled" in the old capitol building they had such poor private chambers that the judges took their libraries and secretaries and went home, doing all their research there, as well as drafting their opinions.

When they moved into the new building only Butler and Roberts of the "old" court made regular use of their chambers. The others, used to working at home, continued on. Chief Justice Hughes sometimes spent an hour or so in his new offices. Brandeis, Stone, Van Devanter and the others left the seals unsat upon, the thick rugs untrod and the shelves unbooked.

The new members, Justices Black and Reed, use their new quarters, bringing the total occupancy to four full time at one part time. Four chambers, gorgeous spots, with walnut fixings and deep divans, just wait.

Each judge is provided by the government with an extensive law library. When Justice Sutherland retired he turned his over to Justice Reed, newest appointee. Retiring Justice Van Devanter kept his and probably he used it officially. He acted as trial judge recently in a New York federal court.

It Wasn't War Paint

One development of the President's recent southern fishing trip was that Admiral Farragut's old flagship Hartford got a much needed coat of paint. For years it has floated disconsolately in the navy yard harbor at Charleston, S. C., and when the President spotted it he commented to Admiral Allen, in charge at Charleston, that the old boat looked pretty ratty. The admiral was chagrined.

Reports from the scene indicate that South Carolinians are not especially upset at seeing the old ship fallen into disrepair. Hadn't it helped deal the death blow to the Confederate navy in Mobile Bay, Aug. 5, 1864; remember Farragut's famous "Damn the torpedoes. Go ahead?"

But when President Roosevelt sailed back into Charleston harbor after fishing a few days in the Caribbean the old Hartford had a new coat of paint.

Read But Not Approved

Congressmen who would like to see Secretary Ickes in charge of spending the proposed pump-priming money seem to have their own way of talking it up. Ever since the issue developed as to whether Ickes or somebody else would spend the new pump-priming money, the Congressional Record has been spotted with tabulations of PWA projects approved but needing money to get started.

Presumably they would share in the priming money if Ickes should be chosen to spend it. In three random copies of the Record we spotted tabulations of such approved projects in Florida, Rhode Island, Indiana, Arkansas, Montana, Louisiana, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Arizona and Idaho.

Suspect Returned to Face Michigan Charges

Milwaukee—(U)—Sheriff William Van Antwerp and two deputies of St. Clair county, Mich., left here yesterday with a suspect who had been questioned and cleared in the Joyce Roberts sex-slaving last July.

The suspect, a 42-year-old former Milwaukeean, is being returned to Port Huron, Mich., on a fugitive warrant to answer charges, police said, he took indecent liberties with two young boys.

The sheriff left with his prisoner just in time to escape being served with a habeas corpus writ obtained by the man's attorney from Circuit Judge John J. Gressory.

Sheriff Edward J. Mitten, of Milwaukee, had brought the man here from Port Huron last week.

LaFollette Designates June as 'Safety Month'

Madison — (U)—Governor LaFollette today designated June as "safety month" and urged all citizens to concentrate on a reduction in highway accidents.

The governor said the activities of county councils and other safety organizations has resulted in a noticeable dropping off in the auto death toll for the first five months of the year and that a definitely planned program is necessary to combat the increase usually shown during the summer months.

King Mallory, Jr.—it was nominated in the bond that in the event of my losing, I should design and present her with an evening gown—and now I can no longer evade the painful task of paying up.

"Can you be persuaded to represent me in this matter? You see, I don't know anything about dress-making, but I know what I like. I want the gown to be of chateau crepe with a great, walloping doodad of some ivory-white material, and I want the white piped with black. How does one go about such things?" Will you arrange it for me, please? Sincerely... Alexander Woolcott.

"P. S. Remember the black piping. Without it the dress will be like an egg without salt."

Inferential Bidding is Help in Play

BY ELY CULBERTSON

When we are heaven blest with a partner whose reasoning processes are thoroughly reliable we can do some very fine inferential bidding. For this type of bidding to stand up in actual play, however, there must be a precise meeting of minds. Take the hand below, for example. It is doubtful that the partnership could have arrived at its laydown grand slam except through the subtle implication, and correspondingly shrewd interpretation, of one certain bid.

South, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable

♥ K 6 4
♦ 10 7 5
♣ Q 10 9 4 3

WEST
♠ K 8 4
♥ Q J 9 3 2
♣ 7 6 5 2

EAST
♠ Q 10 6 5 3 2
♥ 10 7
♦ 9 6 4 3
♣ A 8

SOUTH
♠ A 9
♥ A 8 5
♦ A K Q J 2
♣ A K J

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamonds	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
2 diamonds	Pass	4 clubs	Pass
7 clubs	Pass	Pass	Pass

At match-point duplicate South probably would have bid seven no trump, but at rubber bridge the bonus for aces and the scoring superiority of no trump were unimportant as compared with the slightly greater safety factor in a suit contract. The main point, however, was to reach any grand slam. It was, of course, North's hand, and South's shrewd inference from the bid that induced South's leap from four to seven. First, let us consider the bid itself. North had almost the values for a positive response to the opening two bid. On the second round of bidding he decided that merely to rebid three no trump and leave South in ignorance of the club suit would be unduly conservative. South's opening bid had announced that he was prepared for game even if North had "bored" him. Surely the possession of a king, queen, and jack, as well as a five card suit, justified a little effort on North's part. When the four club bid reached South he was able to draw a perfect deduction. Counting the potential tricks in the combined hands, South did not make the mistake of depending merely on five club tricks, five diamonds, and his two aces. Knowing North's reliability, South could be sure that North would not bid four clubs if he held only five clubs to the Q-10, nor would he make that bid with an outside queen or two. The minimum values in North's hand that would justify his going past the three no trump level with the mention of a minor suit were either a six card suit or, if only a five card suit, an outside king. In either case South could count thirteen highly probable tricks.

It will be noted that any action on South's part, other than jumping directly to the grand slam, hardly could have succeeded. Suppose, for example, that South had jumped to six no trump over the four clubs. This would have been a terrifically strong bid, yet North still would not have been able to go to seven. In that case North could have advanced with perfect logic the fact that his four club bid already had conveyed the picture of his hand. It was South, not North, who could count up to thirteen tricks.

Old Gardener Says:

Garden makers in many sections of the country are continually on the look out for plants which will withstand hot, dry summers and continue to flower freely. The veronica called Blue Spire, which was introduced about two years ago seems to fit into this category. The deep blue spikes of flowers are produced on bushy plants of upright habit. The fact that the flowers are borne very freely throughout the early summer and that the foliage is clean, of course, adds to its merit. This veronica is easy to grow in any good, ordinary garden soil. The flowers should be cut as soon as they fade in order to promote new growth and additional blooms.

It is a good plan to put a few extra melon seeds in each hill just as the first plants are coming up. They may be considered as reinforcements, and will give bearing vines, even though the earlier plants succumb to attacks of the cut worm and striped beetle. A hill as applied to melon culture does not necessarily mean a mound. It is better to practice level culture than it is to make an elevation, which will throw the water away from the plants like the roof of a house.

Students Are Entitled to Know Both Sides of Issue

BY ANGELO PATRI

"If the schools would devote themselves to their own business — educating children — it would be better for them and the children and their parents. My son comes home all excited about a debate on Socialism. I'm against Socialism. Communism, all the other foreign notions that foreigners are trying to inject into American life. I send my son to an American school and I want him taught American ideals, American principles, and nothing else. In short, I want the schools to attend to their own business and cut the politics out."

A debate on Socialism is not going to injure American ideals. It is more likely to strengthen them. A debate allows both sides a full hearing, and if this high school debate ran true to form, both sides got in more than their full share of the hearing. That is not going to prove that the school is supporting one side or the other. It might prove that the school is allowing its students to discover some grain of truth for themselves.

Boys and girls in senior classes of high school are going to vote as American citizens in a few years. After graduation many of them will go to work to earn a living. Should not the school do something toward enlightening these young men and women about the questions of government and economics that dominate their period of existence? It should not be possible to keep political secrets from young people eighteen years of age and over. Yet some people seem to believe that could not be ideal. The young people could not, however the older ones with pertinent inquiries, then.

A public school should not teach party politics. But high school seniors should be able to secure honest information, as far as it is obtainable, about what is going on in their country in the departments of government and economics; should be able to discuss it freely with each other, and should have

Wise Bride Will Check Her Weight

This is the ninth of a series of articles devoted to the Bride and her Beauty.

BY ELSIE PIERCE

If I could flash some warning shadows via a shadowgraph, as a very fine Fifth Avenue Salon does, I am sure you would vow right here and now to keep that form divine. The salon I refer to uses the shadow pictures for several purposes—chiefly as a before and after study of your posture and your measurements in conjunction with their figure contouring course. However, your own mirror can tell you the same story. The point is: will you take it to heart quite as much. Study yourself in the mirror, full view and profile. Picture your figure in silhouette and you have a shadow picture in your mind's eye. But remember—warning shadows.

Curve Control

Curves are definitely in vogue; the straight-as-sicks, boyish form is long passe. But feminine curves are not the overdeveloped variety. The youthful figure, with just a suggestion of curve is the one worth controlling.

Perhaps you are quite an athlete, do a lot of exercising outdoors, play a good game of golf, do yourself so proud on the tennis court that your husband-to-be finds you a real challenge. And perhaps after you are married there will be less time for exercise or less opportunity. In that case, do as much as you can and make up the difference by setting up exercises at home.

Perhaps you have been very careful about your diet, eating just what is good and good for you and taking enough calories for a maintenance diet, but not enough to give you surplus fat. Fine. But perhaps after you are married you will have to add some of the other foods. Compromise somewhere, eat a little less in that case. Do what you have to, but keep that form divine.

There are just two excuses from controlling your own curves: illness and the doctor's orders that you need more fattening food and less exercise, or motherhood, when a protective diet is important. Otherwise, there is wise diet counsel to be had for the asking: there is exercise, and all you need is the will to keep that lovely, girlish figure!

If you would like my complete booklet "Redeem by Exercise" (Booklet 202) is yours for ten cents. It covers the subject thoroughly. Send for it, giving your name and full address to the Bell Library, c/o this newspaper, 247 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y. (Copyright 1938) should know and understand that, with patience and tolerance and good will. Young people, on their side, should understand that the school and the college is dedicated to their service, not in one field, but in many; and that injection of questions of social import into the routine work of the school only hinders the cause they have at heart, their own advancement and growth.

To the school must go the authority of age and experience and responsibility. To youth must go the opportunity to search for truth. Both must respect the other's position, so that both may succeed in attending to their own business.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamp and addressed envelope for reply.

Mystery of the Amazon

IV—A RESCUE PARTY

Picking up the trail of Colonel Fawcett and his two companions, five white men made their way through the Mato Grosso. They were led by George M. Dyott, an old-time Amazon explorer. With him were two photographers and two wireless telegraph experts.

Sam Martin looking at site of "Fawcett's last camp."

At last they reached the point from which Fawcett sent his last message to the outside world. It was near the headwaters of the Xingu river, which is part of the Amazon system.

Going forward to the river, the Dyott party unpacked four canvas boats and opened them up. With the help of Indians who had joined the whites, they made several canoes from the bark of trees.

Among the Indians was one who said he had guided Fawcett for a time. He said the colonel had gone among the Anauqua Indians, some little distance down the Xingu.

Reaching an Anauqua village, Dyott met the chief, who was named Aloique. They spoke together partly by signs, partly through words which one of Dyott's guides helped to translate.

"Yes," said the chief, "we saw the white men. They visited us, and they guided them eastward to another river."

"Will you take us that way?" asked Dyott.

"No! That is where the Suyas live! They come up to people and hit them on the back of their heads!"

With the help of presents, however, Dyott persuaded the chief and some of his warriors to go with them for a short distance. The chief said Fawcett must have been killed by the Suyas, or else must have died from hunger or thirst. A place was pointed out where Fawcett built his "last campfire," and a picture was taken of Sam Martin, one of the rescue party, looking at the marks of the fire.

Dyott noticed that the chief's wife wore a metal tag from Fawcett's baggage, also that a box which had belonged to Fawcett was in the chief's hut. Had these things been given as presents, or had they been taken from the colonel after the Indians had slain him?

The question could not be answered, but one day a guide said he had heard a group of Anauqua Indians plotting to kill Dyott. If there was such a plot, it was not carried out. The whites quickly said goodbye, and went on with their journey.

RECEIVING LINE

Dear Mrs. Post: Mrs. A, Mrs. B, and I are giving a big party in Mrs. A's house for my future daughter-in-law. Will you tell me in what order we should stand to receive the guests. My daughter-in-law to be is practically a stranger to every one coming to the party.

Answer: Mrs. A. should be standing by the door since the party is in her house. It is just a question then whether the guest of honor should be next, or you. But since Mrs. A. will be interrupted continually in order to greet new arrivals, I think it would be better that you stand next to her and then your daughter-in-law-to-be, and then Mrs. B. next. In this order you and Mrs. B. can give much more attention to introducing people to the guest of honor than Mrs. A. could.

May Parents Exhibit Daughter's Work?

Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter is a very talented painter. She has been long abroad, studying, and is coming home for a visit. Her former teacher here—who was really responsible for discovering her talent—is not at home and will not be during her visit. All this by way of explaining why the situation has created a problem, for if he were to be here he would only too gladly exhibit our daughter's work. It seems questionable for her to do it and just about the same if her family did. However, I am sure you can appreciate how very much we would like to have it there in some way that would not bring criticism.

Answer: It would be entirely proper for you to have an exhibition of your daughter's paintings, either in a gallery (if there is one) or wherever would be a convenient place to show them. If this is in your own house you should remove all obstructing furniture from the

Better for Couple to Be Of Same Age, Faith, Race

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young man of barely 22, and I am in love with a girl who is of different nationality, of a different religious faith and six years my senior. My parents tell me that I will make a terrible mistake if I marry her. They beg me to break off with her for at least a year and go with other young ladies with more of my background. Also, they say that they will not help me in any way if I marry this girl, but as she will be willing to continue to work, I think we would be happy. What is your opinion?

TROUBLED.

DOROTHY DIX

they can quarrel and argue without adding to it a difference in nationality and religion.

These things mean nothing to you now. Perhaps it even adds a little piquancy, a little romance for your girl to be of foreign descent, and you think of nothing more important than that she belongs to one faith and you to another. But it will be a different story after marriage. Then the difference in religion will turn into a holy war, which is the cruelest and the bitterest of all wars and in which, between you, you will slay all peace and happiness and even love itself.

Then you will find yourself continually balked, aggravated or outraged by your wife's tastes and habits and opinions that you will resent simply because they are not your ways, habits and opinions.

When people of alien blood marry, it means that one or the other must make a terrible sacrifice in order to adjust himself or herself to the other. And sacrifice is a rocky foundation on which to build a marriage. It is too likely to give way.

Also, there is too much difference in your ages. If you were in your middle thirties, it would not matter for the girl to be six years older than you because then you would be mature and know what qualities you want in a wife. But when you are 22 and are still an unformed boy, while she is a woman who is ages older than you in experience and knowledge of the world.

Your father's advice is wise. Break off this engagement, and go about with other girls for a year. Then you will be better fitted to make the most momentous decision of your life. But don't forget that the happiest marriages are those in which the husband and wife belong to the same class in age, in nationality, in religion, in social standing and intelligence.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a woman of 24. I have been twice married and twice divorced. Somehow I cannot seem to make my marriages permanent. Could you please tell me how I can get married and make my marriage last?

LONELY.

Answer: If you have been twice married at the tender age of 24 you certainly do not need any guide to the altar. You seem to have what it takes and to be an expert at getting your man.

Getting a husband is one thing, but holding on is quite another pair of gloves, as you have found out. When we make a failure of any undertaking, whether it be marriage or business, it is a good thing to sit down and have a heart-to-heart session with ourselves and try to find out how it happened. And I would suggest this procedure in your case.

Did you get tired first, or did your husband? If you did, then you may safely conclude that you are one of the fickle women who lack the power to be faithful to any one man. Women of this type must always have change, excitement, adventure. They can never settle down to the humdrum monotony of domesticity, so they should never marry.

Perhaps the reason that your two husbands threw up their hands and quit so soon was because you did not make marriage agreeable to them. Maybe you stopped dolling yourself up after marriage and went slouching about in untidy negligees. Perhaps you did not make yourself an interesting companion. Perhaps you were a nagger, or too possessive, or too extravagant. It takes a lot of work and tact on the wife's part to make a man think that she is worth supporting and that marriage is a good investment.

The only suggestion that I can give as to how to make a marriage last is for the wife to make her husband so comfortable and contented that he wants to stay put.

room and of course everything hanging upon the walls so that your daughter's pictures will be shown exactly as they would be in a gallery. Send out printed cards announcing that Miss Jane Smith's paintings will be on view on such days, from such to such hours, unusual unless the town in which you live is very small. Even so, it is customary to leave them on exhibition for several days so that every one will have a chance to come. When a great many notices are sent out, especial friends are usually invited on the first afternoon of the showing and tea is served. This is, however, not necessary under ordinary circumstances and it would be quite proper to make no difference between your personal friends and strangers who may be interested.

Mrs. Edgar V. Werner Is Elected Head of Eighth District Women's Clubs

THE eighth district of the Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs this morning elected Mrs. Edgar V. Werner of Appleton district president. The other officers named were Mrs. Adam Steele, Manitowish, vice president; Mrs. C. R. Phenicle, Green Bay, recording secretary; Mrs. George Kahlenberg, Two Rivers, treasurer; and Mrs. H. F. Wiesner, Sturgeon Bay, auditor. All were unanimously elected.

Appleton was further honored when it was awarded first prize in the press book contest for cities of 15,000 and over. Second prize in the Helen Mears art contest went to an Appleton girl, Bernice Sauberlich, a pupil at the Roosevelt school, and honorable mention to another Roosevelt school pupil, Presocia Rancy. Designs of the first three prize winners, including Miss Sauberlich's, will be sent to Milwaukee to be judged in competition with winners of the other districts. The state awards will be made at the state convention in the fall.

Mrs. A. L. Blackstone, president of the Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs, was unable to give her scheduled address at the convention banquet last night. Mrs. George Wettengel of Appleton, however, paid tribute to her and announced that Mrs. Blackstone was recently honored by the board of directors of the 1939 World's Fair with appointment to the woman's conference council of the fair. The Wisconsin woman was also on the program committee for the general federation convention at Kansas City. Because Mrs. Blackstone was unable to be present, Mrs. Lee Blood, Green Bay, a past state president of the federation, gave the banquet address, speaking on "The Inspiration of Clubwomen Through the Ages." Mrs. Edgar V. Werner, Appleton, was toastmistress at the banquet.

Girls Camp To Have New Log Chapel

A NEW log chapel is being built at the Catholic Girls camp at Loon lake in preparation for the opening of the 1938 camp season on June 25. Ground for the chapel was broken by the Rt. Rev. Paul P. Rhode, bishop of Green Bay, a few weeks ago, and it is expected that the building will be completed and ready for use by the time the camp opens.

The camp period will close Aug. 20 and the last week has been designated for women who wish to spend their vacations there. The camp will be made available to groups of young women wishing to spend weekends there before the regular season opens and after it closes. Young Ladies sodality of St. Joseph's church of Appleton already has made arrangements for a weekend trip in June.

Catholic Girls camp was organized in 1926 as a temporary venture but it proved so successful that with the approval of the bishop the Green Bay Diocesan Council of Catholic Women which sponsors the camp began plans to conduct a permanent summer camp for girls and purchased a site on Shawano lake for that purpose. When the camp outgrew the facilities of the Shawano lake location, in 1932, an ideal site was found only a mile from the original camp and fronting on Loon lake. Here permanent buildings were erected on the 27-acre grounds. These included a lodge providing an assembly room, dining room, kitchen and sleeping rooms, and seven additional cottages for extra sleeping quarters.

Additional information about the camp can be secured by writing to Mrs. Frank J. Van Laanen, Green Bay, or contacting Mrs. William Nemahechek in Appleton.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cowan and Miss Helen Pierre, Milwaukee, and Mrs. Minnie Panzer, Juneau, Wis., were guests over the last weekend at the home of Mrs. John Pierre, N. Superior street.

*Constipated? You Should Get at the Cause!

Lots of people think they can't be "regular" without frequent trips to the medicine chest. "I just dose up and get it over," they tell you. But doctors know they don't "get it over"—at all—until they get at the cause of the trouble!

Chances are it's simple to find the cause if you eat only what most people do—meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is a crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the great intestinal tonic, vitamin B.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Veterans' Home Project To be Dedicated June 19

Waupaca—On Sunday, June 19, a ceremony is to be held at the Wisconsin Veterans' Home to dedicate a stone entrance and exit to the grounds to the veterans of the Civil war. The project which is now under construction is the gift of the state department of the Women's Relief corps and will cost the department nearly $800, $200 of which is a gift from the E. B. Woolcott post, Grand Army of the Republic, Milwaukee.

Colonel William Holden, commandant, five years ago suggested the project to Lieutenant Colonel Carl Brosius, who sketched the plan which is now being followed by the workmen.

A wall 500 feet long, 3 feet high and 2 feet wide curves at the entrance and the exit to meet massive piers 7 feet high, on the tops of which will be placed ornamental electric lights. A bronze plaque will be set in each of the entrance piers, on one of which will be the inscription, "Grand Army Home for Veterans" and on the other, "Established in 1887." Wall and piers are of builder face rocks found on the grounds, put together with colored mortar. Upon completion, a wash of acid will bring out the natural color of the rocks.

A cement sidewalk is being laid outside the wall eliminating a hazard encountered when members of the home used the highway that passes through the grounds. This, however, is not a part of the gift project.

In the area between the entrance and the exit has been set a flag pole 67 feet long, with 62 feet extending above the ground. A monument of split boulders will be set before this with a bronze plaque 20 by 20 inches, bearing an inscription which will show the project has been dedicated to the Grand Army of the Republic.

Mrs. Clara Miller, Appleton, state president of the Women's Relief corps, will make the formal presentation of the memorial which will be accepted on behalf of the State by Adjutant General Ralph M. Immell. All department officers of the Relief Corps and the Grand Army of the Republic are expected to be present.

Only two Civil war veterans remain at the home which was founded in their honor 50 years ago, Israel Cannon, 98 years of age, and Duffy Boutin, 94 years, both of whom were Wisconsin soldiers.

Colonel Holden, who has been chief officer of the home for the last seven years, is one of the best known military figures in the state. A native of Monroe county he first saw service in the Mexican border campaign in 1916. In 1917 he entered the service again when he was promoted to a captaincy. In the World war he was cited for "gallantry in action," winning the Purple heart. After the war he continued his services in the Wisconsin National Guard where he is now in command of the 125th infantry.

Besides conducting the affairs of the home, Colonel Holden is also a member of the board of control and much of his time is spent traveling about the state, visiting far-distant institutions maintained by the state for the care of the insane, the sick and crippled and the correctional and penal institutions.

Lawrence to Have Three New Faculty Members Next Fall

Heselton, Two Women Instructors Added to Staff at College

When Lawrence college re-opens next fall, there will be three new faculty members, college officials announced yesterday.

Besides Bernard Heselton, who will be head football coach and instructor in physical education, two new women instructors will take their places on the faculty.

Miss Lucille Palmer, a graduate of Pembroke college, associated with Brown university, will be instructor in German. Miss Palmer held an exchange fellowship to Germany from the Institute of International Education and studied at University of Munich and University of Berlin. She received her M. A. degree from Brown University in 1933 and will receive her Ph. D. from University of Illinois next month.

New English Instructor Miss LaTourette Stockwell, at present English instructor, assistant to the president, and director of public relations at Lake Forest college, will be added to the English department at Lawrence next fall. She received her A. B. from Smith college in 1928, her A. M. from Radcliffe in 1928, and her Ph. D. from the same college in 1936. She spent two years in graduate research at Trinity college, Berlin, and has traveled extensively in both this country and Europe.

Five faculty members who have been on leave will return. They are Dr. Frances Dorothy Bethurum, professor of English, who has been on a Guggenheim Fellowship in England; F. Theodore Cloak, associate professor of dramatics, who has been studying two years at Yale university's school of drama; LaVahn Maesch, returning with the rank of professor of music at Lawrence Conservatory of Music, who has been doing graduate work at Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N. Y.; Frederick W. Trezise, associate professor of engineering, who has been with the TVA at Knoxville, Tenn.; Dr. Joseph Harry Griffiths, professor of psychology, who has been studying in Europe the last semester.

Erie Volkert, who filled Professor Cloak's place in the teaching of dramatics, Francis Proctor, assistant professor of organ and music at the conservatory, and Alfred Galpin, instructor in French, will all do graduate work next year.

Boettiger Gets Leave The college has granted a 1-year leave of absence to Dr. Douglas Boettiger. Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, sophomore tutor, has resigned to accept a position at Scripps college, Claremont, Calif.

Mary Chalmers, instructor in German, and Jeanette Jones, instructor in geology, are resigning to be married. Caroline Stewart and Dorothy Schelp, who have been in charge of the infirmary, will leave for California. They were on the infirmary staff during the absence of Geneva Blumichen.

Promotions in the faculty for next fall announced by college authorities yesterday are as follows: Dr. Stephen Darling, from associate professor to professor of chemistry; Dr. Charles Flory from assistant to associate professor of education; and Howard William Troyer from assistant to associate professor of English.

Miss Ruth Cope, dean of women, will become resident supervisor of Ormsby hall, freshman girls dormitory. A new apartment is being built for her. Succeeding Miss Cope at Russell Sage will be Dr. Edna Wiegand, associate professor of Latin. Miss Maxine Schalk will be resident supervisor of Peabody house and Dr. Charles Flory will have charge of Brokaw hall.

HOLLYWOOD LIGHTS CAMERA ACTION! HAPPENINGS

BY ROBBIN COO'S

Hollywood — Right up in the "Snow White" class for popular appeal should go "The Adventures of Robin Hood," a film to delight all ages.

The new Robin Hood is Errol Flynn, this town's premier swash-buckling star, only one of consequence since Douglas Fairbanks settled down. The tall rangy Irishman brings the romantic figure to brilliant and dashing life in a production so well-proportioned throughout that no single performance can dominate it.

The picture represents a happy projection of the spirit of adventure and romance, its elements woven so skillfully that even its superlative color photography intrudes no more than Erich Wolfgang Korngold's fine musical scoring. Into the screen play are blended many of the familiar Robin Hood legends, pointed up to fit naturally into the exciting, well-knit plot. If the story, and Robin's heroic deeds to confound Prince John and Gisbourne, sometimes strain credulity, it must be remembered that this is a legend, a fanciful adventure.

The Credits Robin's Maid Marian is pretty Olivia De Havilland. Una O'Connor, only other woman cast, plays her maid for excellent comedy with Herbert Mundin as Much the miller's son. Basil Rathbone is his suave, blackest villain as Gisbourne, and Claude Rains as Prince John is remarkable in a role that might have been negative. Patrick Knowles is Will Scarlett. Alan Hale is Little John (the role he played in the Fairbanks silent version) and Eugene Palette a Fray. Tuck. Ian Hunter is a kingly figure as Richard the Lion Heart.

Other Films Previewed Credited for direction are Michael Curtiz and William Keighley. The latter—in a gesture unusual to Hollywood—has publicly thrown the laurels to Curtiz, insisting he walked off the assignment midway in conviction it would be a "turkey."

In "Vivacious Lady" boy meets girl, boy marries girl—and then has several reels of trouble breaking the news to his parents and claiming his bride. Ginger Rogers is the cabaret singer and James Stewart the young college professor who, instead of rescuing his cousin (James Allison) from her clutches, falls hard himself, marries her—and then must introduce her to family and campus at dear old Alma Mater. His college-president father is Charles Coburn, his mother Beulah Bondi, his fiancée Frances Mercer.

As a human comedy with human characters, "Vivacious Lady" is sure to find favor with audiences sated with insanity on the screen, hungry for sincere romance minus slaps and socks. George Stevens' direction displays originality, frequently is brilliant, rarely strained. "Vivacious Lady" should be seen.

"Kentucky Moonshine" is the latest from the Ritz Brothers' bag of movie tricks — an audience comedy whose high point is the trio's presentation of "Snow White." Pretty Marjorie Weaver shines. It's very funny—especially for Ritz enthusiasts.

"Sinners in Paradise" is a sort of "Grand Hotel" on a tropical island. An assorted cast of characters is pitched thereon by the crash of a trans-Pacific air liner. John Boles and servant are the only inhabitants—and then a lot of things happen. Madge Evans is the girl.

It's Odd But It's Science

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE AP Science Editor

Boston — Medical myths: the athletic heart; use digitalis for pneumonia; dampness causes malaria.

These were cited by Roger I. Lee, M. D., in a report to the American College of Physicians, to show how even the best medical observations can lead to wrong opinions.

"The myth of the athletic heart," he said, "is an excellent example of faulty observation."

"A few cases of cardiac disease or death were cited to furnish the statistical evidence. Then extraordinary conclusions of all sorts were made."

"Instruments of precision showed that mysterious fellow who goes about attending to other people's business, in this case wiping up a New York gang. The attractive heroine is Kay Sutton.

the original observations to be erroneous. But the belief was kept alive by a credence in the statistical evidence although this evidence satisfied no statistical requirement.

"Certainly a little thought indicates many other factors that might affect the heart in addition to college athletics."

The belief in digitalis for pneumonia came from use of the electro-cardiograph, the instrument that electrically records heart beats. Digitalis for pneumonia patients, said Dr. Lee, became almost routine overnight. Yet later it was shown that digitalis actually was detrimental in the average case of pneumonia. Malaria was blamed on dampness because it existed near swampy places. But it really came from mosquitoes.

Ekern Declares State Is Leader In Safety Work

Lieutenant Governor Addresses General Session of Green Bay Conference

Green Bay—Lieutenant Governor Herman L. Ekern told 1,200 men and women here this morning that in regard to the accident situation they "should not be discouraged, because much progress is being made."

The address, Ekern's first since being made lieutenant governor, was before the general session of the eleventh Fox River Valley and Lake Shore Safety conference. He spoke in place of Governor Philip F. LaFollette who was unable to appear.

Also speaking at the general session were Viora Wrabetz, chairman of the industrial commission of Wisconsin, and Adjutant General Ralph M. Immell. Both cited what has been accomplished and pointed out flaws still existing.

Predictions that 3,000 men and women would attend the conference seemed assured of fulfillment at noon. Throughout the morning and afternoon, the conference also had smaller sectional meetings at 11 different halls. All industries were represented as well as the home, school and farm.

Banquet Tonight
Tonight's banquet features and address by James E. Gheen, public relations counselor of New York City. Over 1,400 persons had registered in advance for this gathering.

"Wisconsin has had a long and creditable record in accident prevention," Ekern declared. It was one of the leading states 35 years ago in providing for the safety of railroad employees. It was also the first to put into operation a workmen's compensation law to be ultimately sustained by the courts.

"It is now 25 years since the National Safety council was organized in Milwaukee."

"We are below the average among the states in deaths from automobile accidents. We don't lag behind other countries as a nation," Ekern continued.

"Contrary to the popular impression, the rate of 13 deaths for each 10,000 motor vehicles in the United States is low in comparison with other countries."

Blames Human Factor
Interesting statistics regarding traffic accidents were included in the address by Adjutant General Immell. "The human factor or what I would rather call the psychological factor, is responsible for more traffic accidents than any other. This is shown by the fact that of 10,870 serious accidents which occurred in Wisconsin in 1937, traffic violations caused 5,270 or almost half of the total number of accidents," Immell concluded.

Efforts of the industrial commission of Wisconsin would not have accomplished much without the cooperation of other agencies and the general public, Wrabetz declared.

"The underlying purpose of the commission is to prevent an accident. Law places the burden on the employer so he will be encouraged to reduce mishaps," Wrabetz said.

Union President Is Shot to Death In Minneapolis

Police Claim Confession From Man Who Quarreled With Victim

Minneapolis—(U)—William Brown, 43, president of powerful General Drivers' union 544, was shot to death last night, and police said today they had a confession from a man who had quarreled with him over union funds.

It was the second labor slaying here in six months. Echoes of the unsolved Patrick J. Corcoran killing Nov. 17 still were reverberating as Brown's body was found slumped in the front seat of his car near union headquarters. A coroner's jury reported two days ago Corcoran, an officer of the drivers union, was killed by "a person or persons unknown."

Police Chief Frank Forestal said Arnold Johnson, 33, an organizer for Local 544, an A. F. of L. affiliate, confessed he had shot Brown twice, and then walked into nearby tavern and reported the killing to Miles Dunne, a trustee of the union.

Quarrel Over Funds
Forestal said Johnson stated he and Brown had been driving about on union business, stopping to have several drinks before parking on Washington avenue north, without the time of the funeral which will be held Saturday.

LEISINGER FUNERAL

Funeral services for Louis Leisinger, Marshfield, who died in that city Saturday night after several days illness, were held at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Spencer Funeral home, Marshfield. The body was sent to Hartford, S. D., where burial will be made after services at a German Lutheran church there. Mr. Leisinger visited friends in Appleton last week.

The ire of the senate's anti-administration Democrats was aroused by published reports Hopkins had said that if he were an Iowa voter, he would support Wearin.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), with whom Gillette was aligned in the fight against the Roosevelt court bill, told the senate that Hopkins might "just as well have put a slip in the pay envelope of every individual relief worker in Iowa" telling him to vote against Gillette.

Senator Johnson said that if Hopkins made the statement, "the senate ought to have the guts to denounce it."

Senator Lewis (D-Ill.) said he agreed with Johnson's demand.

Wheeler broadened his attack to assail endorsement of any primary candidate by a federal official. He declared the administration would have to take responsibility for the political remarks not only of Hopkins but also of Secretaries Ickes and Wallace and Postmaster General Farley.

their political beliefs and activities would in no way jeopardize their employment on this program."

The ire of the senate's anti-administration Democrats was aroused by published reports Hopkins had said that if he were an Iowa voter, he would support Wearin.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), with whom Gillette was aligned in the fight against the Roosevelt court bill, told the senate that Hopkins might "just as well have put a slip in the pay envelope of every individual relief worker in Iowa" telling him to vote against Gillette.

Senator Johnson said that if Hopkins made the statement, "the senate ought to have the guts to denounce it."

Senator Lewis (D-Ill.) said he agreed with Johnson's demand.

Wheeler broadened his attack to assail endorsement of any primary candidate by a federal official. He declared the administration would have to take responsibility for the political remarks not only of Hopkins but also of Secretaries Ickes and Wallace and Postmaster General Farley.

Raps 'Partnership' Of New Deal Chief And LaFollettes

Samp Tells Republicans State Is 'Suffering Economic Consequences'

Oshkosh—(U)—Edward J. Samp, chairman of the Republican state committee, declared in an address last night the people of Wisconsin now are "suffering the economic consequences of the Roosevelt-LaFollette political partnership."

Samp spoke at a Republican charter night meeting.

Claiming Governor LaFollette found the flaw in his own political philosophy when he labeled President Roosevelt a "tinker and patcher," Samp said the "Roosevelt-LaFollette partnership is apparently on the rocks."

"The partnership of Roosevelt and Schneiderman was foisted on the people of Wisconsin in 1932 by the Progressives," Samp continued. "In 1934 the partnership became Roosevelt and LaFollette. This partnership has continued for four years."

"Partnerships Failed"
"The fiat, at the University of Wisconsin stock pavilion, establishing the Progressives as a national party, now admits that these partnerships have failed."

"It must be assumed that these partnerships had equal ability. We find that now one of the partners says that he can do the job better by going it alone. 'Tinkering and patching' was the main business of the partnership. One of the partners announced that 'we planned it that way.'"

"Neither of the partners has said anything about that phrase during the past year. The plans which are now offered are general platitudes and a call for help and suggestions from which new plans may be formulated. This has been the trial and error method. The results of the errors remain."

"There are just as many people out of jobs, and perhaps more, than in 1933. With plenty of money with which to do business, there is no business. Business means jobs and jobs mean prosperity."

Mexican Rebel Airport Raided

El Salto, in San Luis Potosi, was dispersed by bombing.

The government claimed success in both land engagements, one at the Villala hacienda near Santa Maria del Rio in San Luis Potosi, and the other in the mountains of Guanajuato state, adjoining San Luis Potosi to the southwest.

A "great number of casualties" was inflicted and the rebels scattered in the Villala hacienda battle, it was claimed.

In the Guanajuato fight, the first official confirmation of rebel activity in that state, the government said 30 rebels and 6 soldiers were killed in a combat starting at 6 a. m. and continuing until 2 p. m. near a place called "La Saucedita."

The rebels dug themselves in, it was related, and their fortifications were taken in hand-to-hand fighting.

Wauapaca County Gets WPA Grant of $8,435

The project, with numerous other Wisconsin projects, after being cleared by the president and the comptroller general, will be placed on an eligible list.

Mention 'Guadalajara' And Fascists Go Nuts

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Last week your correspondent composed two little essays kidding the pompers off Benito Mussolini, his inflexible will and his invincible black shirt legions. For all these years Mussolini had been popping his eyes showing that property chain of his, waving his fancy stress bread knife, such as footsore suburban husbands wear at their belts at the annual costume party of the junior league, and telling the world what he was going to do to Philadelphia Jack O'Brien.

Now, everybody in Italy knows that the black shirts are only militia and that, far from being invincible, they are not so hot. The army has contempt for them, and the duce himself has a realistic, private estimate of their worth.

There came a time in Spain when the invincible black shirts got into a clumsy mixup, due to no fault of the rank and file but to a mistake of their commander, were chased by the Spanish rabble of which Mussolini had spoken so contemptuously. This might happen to any green army and be forgotten, but Mussolini had sounded off so loud and long about his inflexible will and his invincible legions that he had put his inflexible will and his black shirts on a spot.

That "inflexible will" stuff is too tempting to be resisted when the will does flex. The same goes for that "invincibility stuff." No man's will is inflexible against the world, and any outfit which claims to be invincible had better be if it doesn't want to be kidded when it isn't.

Your correspondent is still combing bricks, mortar and fragments of shattered bottle glass out of his scalp. The fascists went nuts. Some of the letters would stifle a wet belly goat, and all of them are full of annoyance, although both compositions were only the faintest imitations of the kind of stuff that Mussolini, in his pep talks, and his journalistic yes-men, in print, have been heaving at the world in general for years.

Americans Reacted But Not About 'Invincibles'

The Americans have long had a reputation among the Europeans for boastfulness, and this is not to say it wasn't earned, although the American boasting had to do mostly with the height of our buildings, the extent of the country, the richness and wastefulness of the American people and the cost, in millions of our libraries, jails, state universities, city halls and sewage plants.

The Americans had dough; they regarded European money, which is reckoned in small units, as funny money and would toss tips to the mayors of European towns and commanders of European warships whose uniforms were pardonably confused with the lion tamer's costumes worn by carriage starters at European hotels.

They undoubtedly were offensive, but their boasting didn't run much to military matters, for most of them didn't know a squad from a group of armies. Moreover, they had a low opinion of European aristocracy, honestly derived from the notorious conduct of the high-born he-trollops of the old world who came over here to marry rich little American females for their money.

American principles have corroded somewhat since then, but in those days Americans had a feeling that a man with no money who married a rich girl and moved into her set sacrificed his manhood.

Ever Mild Kidding

Drives Bulldozer Crazy

But never did the American blab about their inflexible will or their invincible legions, as Mussolini and,

Ross Favored To Keep Title

Predict One of Greatest Fights in Boxing History

BY GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK (AP)—Chances are that one of the great fights of boxing history will be seen tonight in a big sunken saucer out on Long Island, when Barney Ross defends his welterweight championship against the phenomenal Negro featherweight king, Henry Armstrong.

There have been a lot of bigger fights, but it would be difficult to recall one that promised more pure, unadulterated action than this 15-round battle between the two best little men in the business. In some respects it is a greater natural than the Louis-Schmeling duel to be fought four weeks from now.

Neither Armstrong or Ross ever has been knocked out, and between them they virtually have cleaned

HOW THEY MEASURE

	Armstrong	Ross

Height	5 ft. 3 1/2 in.	5 ft. 3 1/2 in.
Reach	67 in.	67 in.
Chest (norm.)	35 in.	35 in.

Biceps	11 1/2 in.	11 1/2 in.

Wrist	8 in.	8 in.
Fist	8 in.	8 in.

Ankle	8 3/4 in.	8 3/4 in.

out the lighter divisions. Only Lou Ambers, the lightweight champion, remains to give them a real argument. The winner tonight is due to fight Lou later in the summer.

Odds Favor Ross
Everything points to one of those vicious, relentless affairs where they pile into each other at the first bell and keep it up.

Such betting as was today still favored the 28-year-old Barney to stem the younger Henry's lunging, swinging attack, and at the end to have his sudden glove lifted by the referee. Scarcely one of the experts thought there would be a knockout, despite Armstrong's record of having stopped 35 of his last 37 victims.

The Negro's trail of destruction did not lead him through men like Ross, who has stood and slugged for a total of 125 rounds with Jimmy McLarnin, Tony Canzoneri, Billy Petrolle and Cefirino Garcia. Armstrong hasn't met that kind.

Only Knockdown came when Garcia knocked him for a three-count in their first meeting. Barney got off the floor to beat him. Ross' legs doubtless are not what they were in his great battles a few years back, but they carried him through 15 rounds of heavy punishment against Garcia only eight months ago.

Another point made by Barney's backers is that Armstrong never has gone 15 rounds. They figure he will find those last five stanzas mighty long. At the same time, however, the homicidal little Negro has been seen to step 10 rounds without any sign of weariness, and he is completely confident tonight's 15 won't bother him. Experts, of course, to win long before that.

Outside of the years he is giving away, Ross will have all the physical advantages, including a five or six-pound pull in the weights, an inch and one-half in height and a longer reach. Armstrong, on his record, probably is a little the stiffer puncher. Ross without a doubt is the better boxer.

Motor Bike Club Plans Hill Climb

State Riders Invited to Mosquito Hill on June 5

A motorcycle hill climbing contest with riders entered from the entire state has been arranged by Appleton Motorcycle club for Mosquito Hill, New London, on June 5. It has been announced. Invitations have gone out to the various state riders through their respective clubs. Cash prizes will be offered. Among the Appleton riders expected to compete are Winton Glasier, who has ranked among the best climbers and speedsters in this section of the state, and Howard Ratzman, Andrew Forster and Robert Menning.

MILWAUKEE WINS
Milwaukee (AP)—The Milwaukee Teachers defeated Whitewater Teachers, 4 to 2, in an indoor tennis match here yesterday.

Appleton Girls Softballers Make League Start Friday

APPLETON girls softball team, competing in the Fox River Valley Girls Softball league, will make its first start at 8 o'clock Friday evening under lights at the Forster diamond. Green Bay Merchants, last year's Gordon Bennett team, will be the opponent.

Last year the Appleton girls played independently, defeating Little Chute, New London, Kaukauna and Chilton. They lost a second game to New London.

Marion Nine Trims Bowler, Lola Teams

Marion—The Marion high school baseball team went to Bowler Monday and defeated the Bowler team, 9 to 7. The Marion team led all the way, but Bowler rallied in the closing innings and nearly overtook Marion. Mehlberg, Marion pitcher, allowed only 8 hits.

Tuesday the Marion high school nine defeated Lola on the latter's diamond by a score of 8 to 3. Kristof, Marion pitcher, held the Lola batters to five hits. The Marion batters collected 15 hits off Adams of Lola.

TEERY SHIFTS TO THIRD
New York (AP)—Bill Terry of the Giants has changed coaching spots this season. Manager Bill shifted from the first base to the third base coaching line. "I moved Frank Snyder over to first because there are more decisions to be made at third and because I didn't want to second-guess Frank, or have him think I was second-guessing him."

ROSS ARMING FOR ARMSTRONG

Seven Marks in Danger When State Colleges Clash at Track Tourney

WAUKESHA—Coach Vince Batha's Carroll college track team Saturday will play host to squads from the three other state colleges in the annual meet at Haerle field. Lawrence, which last week took the Midwest conference title by a large margin, is favored to cop the event with ease.

At least seven new records are expected to go into the books at the close of competition, with the Vikings slated to cop five on past performances. Captain Art Buck, Carroll middle distance ace, is likely

16 Leading Pros In $4,600 Tourney

Topnotch Golfers Demonstrate Pet Shots Before Start of Meet

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Sixteen of the nation's leading professionals were scheduled to start down a 126-hole trail toward a $4,600 pot of gold today in the fourth annual Inverness invitational best ball matches, but they had a golf lesson to give before firing the opening shots in the battle for the cash.

A "clinic" for the fans, at which the top-flight club-swingers were to illustrate their pet shots, was the first event on the tournament program, after which the eight pairs were to clash in first round 18-hole matches.

Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and Jimmy Thomson of Shawnee-on-Deleware, the game's longest hitters, were booked for a driving exhibition. Veteran Tommy Armour, the iron shot master, was to show how he does it, while Gene Sarazen, the gentleman farmer, had "explosion shots from the traps" as his chore.

Today's pairings: Lawson Little and Jimmy Demarest versus Ed Dudley and Ky Kauffman. Snead and Vic Ghezzi versus Thomson and Armour. Willie Goggin and Frank Walsh versus Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta (1935 champions). Smith and Cooper versus Dick Metz and Sarazen. Each pair meets each other pair in 18-hole best ball matches.

Drivers Having Engine Trouble

Qualifying Trials Prove Obstacle to 500-Mile Race Entrants

Indianapolis (AP)—The possibility that a reduced field of cars would face the starter's flag in the annual 500-mile speedway race, May 30, was seen today as motors were turned for additional qualifying trials.

Plenty of drivers were available—but cars, able to stand the strain of the 25 mile qualification test, seemed to be scarce.

Regulations provide for a starting field of 33 cars, but this year, 33 luck, in the form of mechanical difficulties, has prevented a num-

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

"THEY'RE still out for track and working as hard as ever."

The statement came from Coach Arthur C. Denney of the Lawrence track and field squad and indicated that while the Vikes may be Midwest conference champions they still are pointing for the state college title Saturday at Waukesha, a title that may be a bit hard to win.

Naturally the dope favors the Lawrence aggregation but there's reason to worry about the prospects because Beloit has a strong team and crafty Louis Means isn't going to leave anything undone to crash through if he can.

Last week Means didn't bring his star distance runner, Tick Tock, along with him because of an injury. But there's reason to believe he'll be ready for this week's competition. And Joe Bowles, Beloit's colored star, who was leading Sam Lee in the low hurdles until he missed his stride, vowed after the race he'd practice all week and intended to take the event.

There's no limit to the number of men you can enter in the college joust and for that reason Beloit probably will be seeking a lot of seconds, thirds and fourths in an effort to offset Lawrence's firsts. Likewise, Lawrence is aiming at a few more thirds and fourths and this week almost every man who ever has been out for track has put on a suit and probably will be taken along in hopes he can do something in the way of points.

There'll be no baseball game in Kimberly Memorial day. It's just another work day at the village and a game with Green Bay will be played later in the season.

Oshkosh High school basketball team coaxed $1,465.11 out of fans last winter. After all expenses were paid and $300 contributed to the high school athletic field fund, there still was $134.04 left to start things next winter.

Outagamie County league games which were rained out on May 6 will be played Memorial day.

Although Lawrence college track and field squad loses a goodly number of top performers in June, the Vikes won't be tailenders in Midwest competition next year. They have a couple frosh who'll do pretty well in the vacated places and several who'll show in events in which Lawrence was weak this year.

For instance, Jack Sellers will be a nice low hurdler, a quarter mile and should do something in the sprints or broad jump. Vince Jones already is being groomed to replace Kapp in the shot and discus. Orwig will show in the high hurdles and pole vault; Davis in the pole vault; Schade and Coddington in the javelin; and Coddington and Orwig in the high jump. The frosh meet Ripon frosh there Friday afternoon.

Lorrie of Marion has been credited with 16 seconds in the high hurdles in the Central Wisconsin conference meet for this year. When he ran the race at the tourney last week the watch gave him a world's record time for some reason or other and the conference agreed that his time at the Central Little Nine meet last Tuesday would go down in the conference records.

Lonnie Harling and the Oshkosh All-Stars have issued a commemorative souvenir magazine of the 1937-38 season and we recently received one in the mail. It tells the story of the All-Stars, and that 89,000 persons saw the 66 games in which they played, 20,900 being at home games. They traveled 9,326 miles, the longest jaunt being during the holidays when they traveled east, 2,551 miles all together. Twenty-two Wisconsin cities were hosts to the Stars. And needless to say it gives Oshkosh and its opportunities a healthy boost.

The National Pro Basketball league is holding a meeting at Oshkosh, June 11 and 12, at the Fox River Hunting and Fishing club. It's located on an island, nine miles from Oshkosh. You need a boat to get there—or you can wade and swim.

Appleton High school lost its claim to the conference 400-yard and 880-yard relay titles last Saturday at Fond du Lac and both went to Green Bay West. The Panthers turned in a 45.6 second run in the 400 which shattered the 47.4 turned in by Sadler, Bowers, Sellers and Bixby of Appleton in 1937. In the 880, West was clocked in 1 minute, 55 seconds a tenth of a second faster than the mark established by Dutcher, Brasch, Sellers and Buesing in 1936.

Rickaby of West also bettered his own pole vault mark. He went 11 feet, 10 inches, an inch more than his record.

Warren Buesing, weight prospect on the high school track squad is laid up this week with a bad gash in one finger. He fell from the shot circle and stepped on his hand, driving a spike into his finger. Five stitches were taken.

Junior High Pool Meet This Evening

146 Students From Six Schools Entered in Races at Y

Eighty-nine boys and 57 girls, a total of 146 students, will be entered in the annual junior high school swimming championships which opens at 7:15 tonight in the Y. M. C. A. pool.

Swimmers representing McKinley, Roosevelt, Wilson, St. Theresa, St. Joseph's, and St. Mary's will be out to win points for their schools and crack existing records.

Besides competition in the grade brackets—seventh, eighth, and ninth—among all six schools, an all-events winner will be named for the first time this year. Ray Risch, physical education director at the Y, said today.

Boston Bees Take 11 Innings to Defeat Cincinnati Reds

BROOKLYN (AP)—Larry French, the Chicago Cubs' muthu ace, pitched a three-hitter yesterday to trounce the Dodgers, 7 to 2, and win his third straight hurling victory.

In addition to his flinging, he struck the most damaging blow in the 10 hit attack the Cubs fired at the Tot Pressnell by doubling with the bases loaded in the eighth inning to send the final three Chicago runs across. Ripper Collins hit his sixth homer of the year in the second inning.

It was the fifth straight loss for the Dodgers.

BEES DEFEAT REDS IN 11TH

Boston (AP)—Behind Deacon Danny MacFadden's seven-hit pitching, the Boston Bees yesterday gained their fourth overtime victory in their current home stand by defeating the Cincinnati Reds, 2-1, in 11 innings. It was MacFadden's fourth win of the season. He did not issue a pass to or strike out a single Red.

The Bees' winning run came with one out. Debs Garmis opened the 11th by doubling down the left field foul line and Paul Derringer, who went the distance for the Reds, purposely passed Vince DiMaggio. Bobby Reis advanced both with a sacrifice and Garmis scored after Gene Moore bounced a grounder over Derringer's head into center field.

Wegner Signed by Kimberly Nine

Oshkosh Performer Went Into Spring Training With Dodgers

Kimberly—Fritz Wegner, Oshkosh, will hold down first base and Sven Bowman will be shifted to the outfield Sunday when the Papermakers meet Clintonville here. Manager White Behrendt has announced.

Wegner went into spring training with Brooklyn but came back after he had been shifted around to several minor league clubs. The Papermakers were out last night for their first workout in more than a week.

The rest of the lineup Sunday will be the same. Lefty Behr and Sonny Carvenough will be on the mound with Jack Lamers doing the receiving. The Papermakers lost the opening game of Manitowish two weeks ago by a score of 10 to 3 and last Sunday were defeated by the Miller High Lites of New London, 7 to 5.

The Clintonville Truckers are in fifth place with one win and one loss in two games.

The game scheduled here Memorial day with Green Bay will be postponed to a later date because the mill will be operating Monday.

Menasha Plans Amateur Card

Admiral, Seabiscuit May Meet at Suffolk

New York (AP)—Racing fans can take heart. There's a chance that Seabiscuit and War Admiral may meet after all.

Charles S. Howard, owner of the Biscuit, announced yesterday he had hopes of getting his horse ready for the $50,000 Massachusetts handicap at Suffolk Downs June 29. George Conway, trainer of War Admiral, said some time ago that the son of Man O'War would be pointed for the rich New England handicap after his races in the Suburban handicap at Belmont park Saturday, and the $20,000 Brooklyn handicap at Aqueduct June 25.

Howard plans to ship the entire stable, including Seabiscuit, scratcher from his Memorial day match race with the Admiral, to Suffolk after the close of Belmont's meeting next week.

Badger Nine Seeks Win
In Final Home Battle

Madison (AP)—The University of Wisconsin baseball team will close its home season schedule today when it meets Michigan at Camp Randall field.

The Badgers will be after their seventh conference victory. They have lost four games and are fourth in Big Ten standings.

Bob Henrichs, who defeated the Wolverines at Ann Arbor earlier in the season, will pitch for Coach Lowell Douglas' nine. Fishman will hurl for the visitors.

George Zuehlis, who has been on the Badger pitching staff, has left the squad. He pitched for Wisconsin Rapids, a semi-pro club, recently and therefore is ineligible for further Big Ten competition.

State Will Get Funds for Bang's Disease Control

Ten Per Cent of Federal Appropriation Will be For Prevention Work

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Of approximately $8,100,000 appropriated for Bang's disease control work in the new federal agricultural appropriation act, about 10 per cent will be available for prevention work for Wisconsin herd owners. Dr. Walter Wisnicky, state livestock sanitation director, estimated today.

The new federal appropriation is about $3,400,000 less than the $12,500,000 from the federal government for control work in the nation during the current fiscal year, according to Wisnicky. But because of progress in controlling Bang's disease, and indemnity changes, the reduction is not expected to prevent the carrying on of Bang's control work in Wisconsin at the usual rate," he explained.

"During the last four years the demand for Bang's tests both under the voluntary agreement plan and the Bang area test plan have taxed the facilities of the state-federal organization to a point where requests for testing often could not be granted promptly," he said.

Wisnicky pointed out two new significant indemnity features in the federal act for 1938:

Features of Act
1. After July 1, 1938, federal indemnity, both on the voluntary agreement plan and the area test plan will be calculated on the basis of one third of the difference between the appraised valuation and net salvage, not to exceed $25 for grade animals and $50 for pure breeds. The original law provided that indemnity be calculated on the basis of the difference between the appraised valuation and the net salvage, $25 for grades, and $50 for pure breeds.

2. After May 1, 1939, federal funds will be paid only when they are matched by state funds. Under the original provision, which will obtain until May 1, 1939, federal indemnity was paid without being matched with state payments.

The practical result of the first new feature will be a slight lowering of the federal indemnity payment, Wisnicky says.

"The second feature is of importance to Wisconsin because of the great demand for control service from her owners, he pointed out.

"If after May 1, 1939 this provision still obtains it will mean that Wisconsin will have to appropriate much larger sums of money for control work if the program is to be continued in accordance with the demands of cattle owners," he warned. "Under the provision requiring that federal funds be matched with state funds, if the federal payment will be near its present level the total amount received by herd owners for diseased animals will be substantially increased," he said.

Named Delegate To Holstein Meet

R. J. Schaefer One of Thirteen in State Selected To Attend

R. J. Schaefer, route 1, Appleton, is one of the thirteen Wisconsin delegates elected to represent the state Holstein breeders at the Holstein-Friesian Association of America open forum which convenes at the Palmer House, Chicago, May 31, and at the fifty-third annual convention on June 1. All states will be represented.

Open forum day permits delegates, officials of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America and interested breeders to bring up for full and open discussion any problems relating to the welfare of the black and white cattle in this country. Any interested breeder has the privilege of the floor.

When the convention officially convenes on June first, all matters of official business will be transacted by the delegate convention. Officers for the coming year will be elected and the annual banquet featuring motion pictures showing the development of the Holstein breed in their native land, Holland, will be shown by Secretary G. L. Clemons of the Canadian Holstein-Friesian association. All Holstein breeders have been invited to take part in open forum day discussion, sit as spectators in the annual convention and attend the annual banquet.

At the time of this convention, Holstein breeders will adjourn to the farm of John Zuerlein, Plymouth, Wis., where one of the breeds most noted herds will be sold in a complete dispersal sale on June 2. The sale of this famous foundation herd will permit breeders assembled from every state in the union to take home with them "seed stock" of the Holstein-Friesian breed.

Alfalfa Silage Gives Richer Color to Milk

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)
Madison—Milk of a richer color than that formerly produced on a hay-corn silage ration can now be produced by feeding the dairy herd alfalfa silage.

This is announced in a special bulletin recently published by the Agricultural Experiment station at the University of Wisconsin. The reason, it is explained, is that alfalfa silage contains an unusually large amount of the yellow pigment carotene, which is largely responsible for the golden color of milk. In hay-making most of the carotene is destroyed while in silage-making most of it is preserved.

Complete directions for the preparation of alfalfa silage are contained in the bulletin, which is available to Wisconsin farmers.

Holstein-Friesian Breeders' Picnic At Chilton July 9

The announcement was issued from the office of Miss Laura Krey, Madison, secretary of the Wisconsin Holstein-Friesian Breeders' association.

Arrangements for the event will be made by a committee consisting of Harry Nelson, Union Grove, president of the state organization; Robert Geiger, Minneapolis, and E. M. Clark, Wheaton, Ill., fieldmen; D. K. Allen, Oshkosh; Harry E. Bailey, manager of Pinehurst Farms, Sheboygan Falls; and Leonard Seybold, Forest Junction.

Rural Women at Annual District Club Conference

Cotton Dyeing Demonstration Features Columbine 4-H Meeting

Rural women of Outagamie county are being represented at the annual convention of the eighth district of Wisconsin Federation of Women's clubs which is being held today and Thursday at Marinette. Mrs. John Schoettler, president of Outagamie County Federation of Rural Women's clubs, is attending the sessions as well as Mrs. H. M. Culbertson, Mrs. R. J. Doerscher, Mrs. W. D. Brown, Mrs. R. T. Jones, Mrs. Ed. Miller and Mrs. Henry Haferbecker and others. Delegates to the convention were elected at the last quarterly meeting of the county federation at Appleton Women's club in April.

A demonstration on dyeing cotton material by Lucy Haets was a feature of the meeting of Columbine 4-H club Friday night at the home of MacBell Plamann, route 3, Appleton. Chester Dumond, assistant county agricultural agent, spoke of the qualities of a good demonstration and distributed project instruction books. Demonstrations are being planned for each meeting.

Delores Paltzer and Jane Haferbecker will give the demonstration at the next meeting June 10 at the home of Lester Weiland. Two new members were admitted to the club and one was reinstated. Games and refreshments were served by Mac Bell Plamann and her mother.

South Greenville Grange will meet Thursday evening at the Grange hall. A dance will be given at the hall on the regular meeting night, May 28.

Wide Awake home economics group will meet at 1:30 next Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Kathleen Steffler, route 1, Menasha.

Launch Extensive Campaign Against Farm Fire Losses

An extensive campaign against farm fire losses has been launched through the county 4-H clubs by R. C. Swanson, county agent, in cooperation with the state university and Wisconsin Mutual Insurance alliance. The campaign consists of educating the young people in what constitute fire hazards and how they may be removed to avoid fires.

The 4-H Club members are furnished with a quantity of educational material that includes the proper care of heating plants, proper storage of gasoline, and the danger of improper use of electrical equipment; what to do in case of a fire, and how to handle a fire extinguisher. This form of education cannot help but reduce the tremendous fire loss, which is now costing the country districts more than the amount expended for educational purposes there, Swanson stated.

The farm mutual insurance companies are awarding about $50 in prizes in the county, and besides, the winners will compete in a statewide campaign and the boy and girl winners there will be awarded scholarships at the University of Wisconsin by the Wisconsin Mutual Insurance alliance.

Repairs on Farms are Behind Depreciation

Repairs, remodeling and new construction of farm buildings are not making up for normal depreciation. This is true in widely separated areas, as shown by surveys made in Wisconsin, Kansas and Illinois, under direction of the bureau of agricultural engineering of the federal department of agriculture, according to information received by R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent.

"Few people realize how bad the situation really is," according to the bureau. "Many structures must be repaired at once or they will soon be worthless. Many have already deteriorated to such an extent that they are beyond repair. On the majority of farms, buildings have not been properly maintained since the postwar drop in farm prices in 1920."

The type and size of structures needed on farms also has changed considerably in many sections of the country. For example, in the Kansas township surveyed, farms have increased in size since wheat proved to be a more dependable crop there than corn, alfalfa, and livestock. The type of crops grown has changed in other cases, and yields per acre of many crops have increased. As a result, there is great need for replacement or enlargement of the older buildings.

Breeders of 6 Counties to Show Brown Swiss Cattle June 2 at Brillion Exhibit

Chilton — The pick of the Brown Swiss herds from Brown, Door, Calumet, Kewaunee, Sheboygan and Manitowish counties will be exhibited at a parish show to be held at Brillion, June 1. In charge of the first showing of Brown Swiss cattle to be held in this group of counties will be Fred Behnke, president, with the assistance of the following officers and directors: Vice, President John Rothmund, Manitowish; Secretary Earl Zick, Forest Junction; Brown County Director Albert N. Mackers, West De Pere; Calumet County Director Richard Behnke, Hubert; Door County Director August Knoepfel, Bailey's Harbor; Kewaunee County Director August Kuehl, Kewaunee; Manitowish County Director John Kuester, route 1, Newton, and Sheboygan County Director Joseph Skelton, Cascade.

Fred Idise, fieldman, is spending several days among the breeders, helping them to select their outstanding Brown Swiss individuals for exhibition at this first public showing.

Mr. Rothmund acquired his enthusiasm for the Brown Swiss cow by inheritance, he declared. He was born in Switzerland and grew up with the big brown cow. When it comes to comparing the different breeds, Mr. Rothmund said, there just are no other breeds. Brown Swiss are tops beyond any question of doubt, he maintained.

Brown Swiss breeders are confident that as soon as farmers realize the many outstanding qualities of this breed, it will be only a short time when the Brown Swiss will be more numerous than any other dairy herd.

Bull Associations Aid Farmers With Small Dairy Herds

Cooperative Provides Good Sires at Small Cost To Members

Many farmers with small herds can't afford to keep a good registered herd sire, and organization of cooperative dairy bull associations to solve this problem is favored by Dr. J. F. Kendrick, in charge of dairy herd improvement work for the federal department of agriculture.

Such an association, in which several dairy farmers go in together and buy a good bull, provides a means for both groups of farmers to carry out herd improvement through better breeding. Dr. Kendrick states. Such a program is now being carried out in Outagamie county, according to R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent.

There are now 166 cooperative dairy bull associations active in the United States. These associations have a total membership of 2,551 dairymen and own 734 registered dairy sires. Thirty-four of the associations were organized last year. The older associations have had remarkable success over a fairly long period, says Dr. Kendrick. The oldest has been in operation for 28 years and 36 have been functioning more than 10 years. The associations are divided into three or more blocks of dairymen, with one bull to each block of breeders. As many as five blocks is desirable, as in the smaller groups bulls must be purchased more frequently to prevent inbreeding. In an association

AAA Committeemen to Confer With Farmers

To better acquaint farmers with the 1938 Agricultural Adjustment program, committeemen of the Seymour township will hold meetings Saturday and Tuesday at the Seymour city hall. Farmers of the township may meet with the committeemen from 9 o'clock in the morning until 5 in the afternoon to discuss arrangements for farming practices in order to qualify for a payment under the program.

Explains Payment Rule on Herds in Bang's Program

Federal Inspector Clarifies Announcement on Paying Indemnities

Clarification of an announcement that indemnity will be paid only up to July 1 on reactors found in herds on which Bang's-free certificates have lapsed was made today by Dr. J. S. Healy, inspector of the federal bureau of animal industry in a bulletin to R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent.

"We will continue to pay indemnity on reactors found in all certified herds that are maintained in good standing," Healy stated.

"If the Bang's test is made any time up to July 1, 1938, on herds that have been previously certified, but on which the retest was not made on schedule and the certificate of clean health consequently was permitted to lapse, indemnity for reacting cattle removed from the herd will be paid. After July 1, 1938, if reactors are disclosed in herds that have been certified in indemnity will be paid only if the recertification test was made on schedule," he said.

A Bang's-free certified herd is one that has passed three negative tests approximately six months apart, as attested by a certificate from the state department of agriculture and markets. It was pointed out. The certification of clean health for a herd must thereafter be maintained by a retest once a year at the owner's expense.

Failure to meet this requirement allows the certificate to lapse and such herd owners lose the right to indemnity after July 1, 1938, if any Bang-infected cattle are removed from their herds.

Farmers of State Earned Less Last Year Than in '36

Walter Ebling, Economist, Predicts Another Drop in 1938

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Farmers of Wisconsin earned less last year than in 1936, Walter Ebling, senior statistician and economist for the state department of agriculture, estimated this week on the basis of nearly complete income figures.

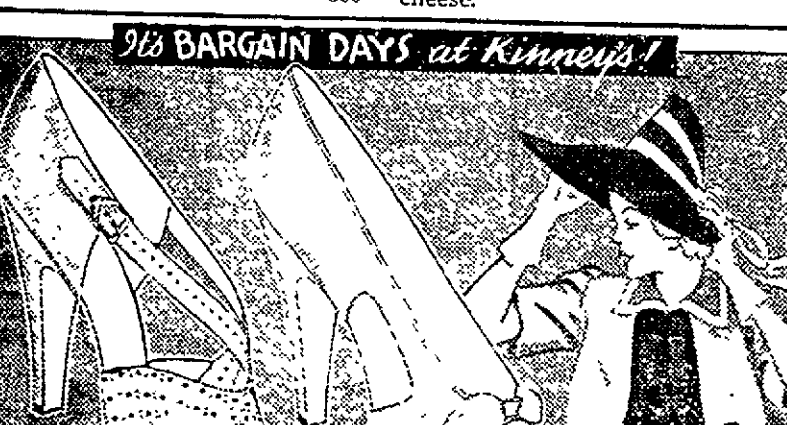

Ebling estimates that gross farm income for Wisconsin in 1937 declined from the previous year, although only slightly. He predicts final compilations will show a one per cent fall.

Moreover, because of sharply dropping farm prices at the present time, a further reduction in the earnings of Wisconsin farm folk may be predicted for this year, he said.

Wisconsin gross farm income last year was $360,000,000 compared with $364,000,000 in 1936, and $437,000,000 in 1935.

The condition of Wisconsin agriculture may be learned from the total income figures at different periods during the last three decades. It will be noted that last year's figures show a substantial recovery of the losses during the early depression years. From $437,000,000 in 1929, Wisconsin farm earnings dropped at the low point of the depression, in 1932, to $186,000,000, a decline of 57 per cent. From 1932 to 1936 there was a gain of 98 per cent.

Rotarians Told Of State Work for Crippled Children

Miss Lois Mitchell Speaker At Meeting of Kaukauna Club

Kaukauna—The state program for crippled children was the topic of Miss Lois Mitchell, district supervisor of the crippled children division of the state department of instruction yesterday noon before the Kaukauna Rotary club. Her talk was followed by motion pictures showing how crippled children were aided in overcoming physical handicaps.

"Wisconsin's crippled children program is about 10 years old," Miss Mitchell said, "while many states are just now embarking on similar activities. In 1936 aid was received from the federal government for the first time, which together with state appropriations suffices to carry out the program."

The federal aid enabled the division to expand its field service and clinical program. Field clinics are held under the supervision of the crippled children division in cooperation with the county medical societies. Local citizens help by serving light lunches and in other ways.

Include All Countries Field clinics are located on the basis of need, Miss Mitchell said, with the attempt made to include all counties at least once each year. The department maintains 11 orthopedic schools in Wisconsin, the closest of which is at Appleton. These institutions are conducted in much the same fashion as ordinary schools, with a combined academic and physical program of instruction.

"Only one-sixth of the pupils attend these schools because they are physically unable to attend others," the speaker said. Most of them come to receive treatment not available elsewhere.

Teachers are chosen on the basis of experience, temperament and understanding of children. Experience in rural school teaching is particularly desirable, as orthopedic schools have pupils of different grades in the same class.

KNOW YOUR VITAMINS!

Good Tasting Yeast Tablet Promotes Vital Nutrition

Many people are confused by claims regarding vitamins and their importance in preserving health. For your own good you should know these facts about this vital subject: Three vitamins, namely B-1, B-2 and B-6, are lacking in many refined foods. Deficiency of Vitamin B may mean poor digestion, constipation, even nervous disorders. Without Vitamin B, skin, hair and nails fail to get proper nutrition. Too little Vitamin B impairs the structure of teeth and bones, decreases intestinal muscle-tone and resistance to infection. Yeast is the richest known source of Vitamin B and G. The irradiation of the yeast in Ray-D Tablets adds the important Vitamin D in amounts equal to 1 1/2 teaspoons of ordinary cod liver oil in each tablet. Many doctors recognize the value of Vitamin B and G. A food supplement of B, G and D. Be sure you get RAY-D IRRADIATED YEAST TABLETS. At leading drug stores everywhere.

High School Gets Charts on Story Of Tuberculosis

Staff Member of W. A. T. A. Tells of Campaign Against Disease

Kaukauna—Dr. Oscar Lotz, Milwaukee, medical staff member of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association, presented Kaukauna High school yesterday morning with a set of 20 education charts telling the story of tuberculosis. Selection of Kaukauna High school as one of the first schools in the state to receive such a gift was announced by the Woman's club, local organization carrying on work of this kind.

Mrs. H. E. Thompson of the Woman's club, chairman of the Christmas seal sale to raise funds for fighting the disease, assisted in arranging for the donations of the charts.

"There is enough knowledge available to wipe out tuberculosis here if only everyone would use that knowledge," Dr. Lotz said in a brief talk. "It is our hope that the charts will give this knowledge to the students, parents and teachers so that we will not go on paying a needless toll to tuberculosis—a preventable and curable disease."

The charts, each 24 by 36, are in five colors and show the spread, symptoms and treatment of tuberculosis.

Complete Plans for Award of Governor's Cup at Water Carnival

Kaukauna—Final arrangements for the presentation of the gold governor's cup at the Veterans of Foreign Wars water carnival here June 11 and 12 were made yesterday as L. F. Stutz, Madison, personal representative of Governor Phillip LaFollette, met with the executive committee. The cup, four feet high, will arrive in Kaukauna some time this week and be placed on display along with the many other trophies to be awarded.

The proposed water racing course opposite Riverside park was highly satisfactory to Stutz, who described it as unequalled in Wisconsin. The fine opportunity to smash records has persuaded the Wisconsin Boating association to make the races its championship affair.

Completion of plans for the booster parade on Saturday, June 4, through the valley to advertise the water carnival, was also announced. The parade will leave Kaukauna about 12:30 for Fond du Lac, from where it will swing north through Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha, Appleton, Kimberly, Little Chute and Green Bay. Police chiefs in these cities have promised the committee that a motorcycle policeman will meet the motorcade at the city limits and escort it through the city.

Says Pavement Is Faulty but Can be Fixed by Patching

ommanded that these sections be opened to traffic to determine their soundness. If ravelling continues, he said, after warm weather traffic or any other serious defects should appear, the pavement should be relaid.

Finds Clay Balls
Skidmore found in his tests many small, clay balls dispersed throughout the mixture, especially in the toppling samples. He maintained that the fine aggregates, or sands, used in the mixture did not comply strictly with the specifications. The clay balls, if the mixture is very porous and fails to compact under traffic, would cause "stripping" and subsequent disintegration of the pavement, the report stated.

Clay content beyond a very small percentage is to be avoided in bituminous pavements, Skidmore reported, and in this case "should have been a warning sign to technical men of the city and its supervising laboratory as well as the technical advisers of the Colprovia company."

The samples also showed that most of the fumes tested showed a high percentage of uncoated particles, which he termed detrimental. He said that because the particles were not coated thoroughly, they were readily displaced by traffic.

Much of the difficulty with the pavement was due to the fact that it was laid in the fall, it is apparent from the report. In fact Mr. Skidmore said that some of the defects illustrate "the folly" of laying this type surfacing at any time except during hot weather. He also indicated that a more satisfactory type of pavement might have been selected for College avenue.

Following is the complete report from the laboratory, with the exception of the technical analysis tables:

Chicago Testing Laboratory, Inc.
336 Lake Shore Drive,
Chicago

May 20, 1938.
Mr. John Goodland, Jr.,
Mayor, City of Appleton,
Wisconsin.
Dear Sir:

This is our report concerning the Colprovia paving laid late fall on College avenue and Washington street.

This report includes our conclusions and recommendations based upon:

1. Inspection of the pavements on May 9, 1938 by the engineer in company with City Engineer A. W. Wickesburg, in accordance with your instructions.

2. Exhaustive laboratory examination of samples of binder and wearing courses taken from nine different locations throughout the length of the pavements. These samples were cut from the pavement by two employees of the Street department in the presence of Mr. Wickesburg and the undersigned, and as directed by the latter. They were securely wrapped and crated and shipped by express to the Chicago Testing Laboratory.

3. Inspection of the paving plant used by the contractor, and also raw aggregate materials in stock piles at the plant site, by the undersigned in company with Mr. Wickesburg.

4. Examination of the city's official copy of the contract and specifications under which the work was executed.

5. Examination of the file of Test reports of the supervising laboratory in charge of the work on behalf of the city.

As a result of our thorough study of these two pavements, their present condition after a few months of winter traffic, and having in mind the peculiar nature of the pavement type selected by the city (which requires warm weather traffic for proper consolidation), together with the fact that it appears that the contract and specifications were met substantially (except in some minor deviations from precise limits of mixture composition), and having in mind also that the specifications are glaringly devoid of any reference to the manner in which the pavement shall be laid or under what nature of weather conditions construction shall be permitted; it is our judgment that two things should be done at this time:

1. Wherever substantial ravelling of wearing surface (which involves a considerable portion of the central traffic lane) has occurred, the ravelled surface should be removed to the binder course and be replaced with new material, properly laid. If any binder course is found to be defective, it should also be relaid. We do not consider that resurfacing over badly ravelled areas with a toppling will provide adequate or reliable restoration.

2. In the center of each side of the central traffic lane, which are used exclusively for curb parking ing of motor vehicles, only a few minor defects are evident from a careful examination. It is only natural that a newly laid pavement of the Colprovia type, which has had no moving traffic nor warm weather, should show caulk marks and tire imprints. Such defects are the only ones in evidence in these areas and can easily be repaired by the addition of small amounts of top mixture.

In view of the normal condition of the parking areas, and certain sections of the traffic lanes (where ravelling is not in evidence), these sections should be allowed to go through warm weather traffic which, unfortunately in the case of these pavements, is so essential to Colprovia and similar types of pavement, in order to determine their soundness.

If ravelling persists after adequate warm weather traffic, or any other serious defects should appear, the pavement should be relaid.

In order to assist materially the proper traffic compaction of the curb parking areas, traffic should be diverted to them for a month or more during hot weather, using the center zone for angle parking during that period.

The five year bond of the contractor should amply safeguard the city since any defects serious enough to require reconstruction should be in evidence long before the bond has expired.

"The details of our examination follow:

Present Condition of Pavements
1. College avenue, from Story street to Drew street:

At the far west end of this project, the pavement appears to be in good condition. As you proceed eastward, the central traffic lane begins to show signs of distress and by the time the heart of the business district is reached, the center zone ravelling has become severe. The section in which little ravelling has occurred extends from Story street east to about State street.

The curb parking areas are free from ravelling for the entire length of the project, but a few service cuts (probably pavement openings preceding the laying of surfacing material) are showing signs of subsidence. There are numerous caulk marks in the western end of the project and some rather deep tire impressions at several locations.

The longitudinal construction joints between the strips laid down by the mechanical spreader, used to lay the mixture, have ravelled rather extensively. No doubt this is due to lack of proper compaction at the junction of the strips as laid by the machine. Most of these will automatically be corrected when the traffic lanes are repaved. Such joints are not so corrected as they are by the addition of toppling mixture, well rolled in place during warm weather.

The section of the project which shows the most severe ravelling lies between State and Oneida streets. In this district there is no question but that the wearing surface in traffic lanes should be completely replaced. Less extensive replacements may suffice for the present in the section between Oneida and Drew streets and only limited areas will require attention at this time between State and Story streets.

2. Washington street from Superior street to Oneida street:

This is a much narrower pavement with a center traffic lane and longitudinal parking along both curbs. Considerable ravelling has occurred in the center zone with none in evidence in the parking areas. As in the case of College avenue, where ravelling is severe, the center zone should be relaid to the binder course.

Comments: Top
There are quite a few small clay balls dispersed throughout the mixture. (This condition was quite prevalent in the top samples. The clay evidently came from the fine sand which contained the clay, and to contain considerable clay. These balls of fine clay became disintegrated during mixture analysis and appear as mineral passing 200 mesh and hence do not precisely reflect the actual granular composition of the mixture as it exists in the pavement since they appear there as small agglomerations of sand-grain size.

With respect to the durability of a paving mixture containing "clay pills," if the mixture is very porous and fails to consolidate under traffic, they may be the source of promoting emulsification of the bituminous cement or binder, commonly known as "stripping," with subsequent disintegration of the pavement. On the other hand, many pavement mixtures of the sheet asphalt type have had high clay-ball content and, when well compacted have endured for many years. Clay content beyond a very small percentage, present in the sand aggregate, is to be avoided as a general rule in bituminous pavements, and in the present case should have blazoned a warning sign to the technical men of the city and its supervising laboratory as well as the technical advisers of the Colprovia company.

In this particular, the fine aggregates (sands) used in the manufacture of the paving mixture did not comply strictly with the specification, which states that the fine aggregate "shall be free from clay balls." Even a casual examination of samples from the pavements (and a test for silica) quickly show these small agglomerations to be clay, which must have been present in the sand.

This disclosure of our examination of samples is dealt with at length here because clay balls were evident in sample No. 1, as well as many others. It was noted that where stripping was evident in the mixture, it was invariably at the bottom of the wearing course, where quite naturally moisture would remain in contact with bitumen coated mineral grains the longest. Destructive moisture does not always, or even usually, come from the upper surface of the pavement. It frequently comes via capillary, from poorly drained subgrade.

It was also noted that in those samples showing the greatest amount of clay balls (except No. 2) surface ravelling had been most severe, which indicates that at least they did not help to promote the integrity of the newly laid mixture under traffic during the wet, cold months.

It is only fair to assume that the sands were never tested for clay content prior to or during construction. It is also very doubtful whether or stripping tests were made on samples of the mixture, since they, too, would have disclosed the presence of excessive clay.

Sample No. 1 is slightly high in 200 mesh mineral, otherwise it complies with the specification.

General Comments, Re. Mixtures
In general, the mixtures are well balanced and contain ample bitumen. Deviation from a strict interpretation of specifications is confined to high 200-mesh mineral which, per se, is inconsequential. Undoubtedly the 200 mesh material is increased by the presence of the clay balls which naturally break up in the extractor.

It will be noted that universally the densities are low and voids very high. In some cases voids exceed 20 per cent of the volume of mixture in place. This shows conclusively that the pavement requires further compaction to render it serviceable and reflects the lack of warm weather traffic. The beneficial effect of traffic in compacting the pavement is evidenced by the considerably higher density of samples from the traffic zone as compared with those from the parking areas. The high voids in the mixture rendered it easy prey for moisture to permeate the pavement.

This is a perfect example of the folly and danger of laying this type of pavement in the late fall in this climate.

The presence of clay balls in the mixture has already been discussed. Binder Course
Any departures from the strictest technical compliance with the specifications shown by analysis, were of no importance with respect to substantial compliance with the specifications.

Could Use Solvent
The specifications permit the use of a volatile solvent as an aid to workability. It was suggested that a diluent may have been used in view of the extremely adverse weather. Also Mayor Goodland had in his office a sample which possessed a distinctly light distillate odor.

None of the nine samples taken by us on May 9 in any way indicated the presence of a solvent, but in order to check this, a steam distillation was run on 1,000 gram portion of sample No. 7 (selected at random). For comparison with this, a similar distillation was made on a freshly prepared sample of Colprovia, using fresh samples of Colprovia flux and powdered asphalt obtained from a local contractor.

This test shows conclusively that no diluent was present in the sample.

Specifications
As previously mentioned, the specification is far from a complete one. Such vitally important matters as the actual construction of the pavement, characteristics of the finished pavement and weather conditions under which construction would be permitted, are not even mentioned. It is evident that such a specification could only have been drafted to cover the manufacture of the paving mixtures. In the latter respect it is reasonably complete.

Contractor's Plant
Inspection was made of the plant used on these projects. It is an old railway car plant of some 20 years or more age, but when equipped with proper scales and similar accessories, is capable of producing mixtures in compliance with the specification. It was stripped of scales, so it was not possible to determine whether the weighing devices were accurate, however, it is fair to assume that they were since mixture samples show good uniformity of composition.

There was nothing to indicate that the plant had been equipped with a cooling chamber for reducing the temperature of the mineral aggregates to 125 degrees Fahrenheit after drying to less than one-half per cent moisture content, as specified. However, this may not have been an essential adjunct for late fall operations when higher temperature of the mixture would be conducive to greater workability.

Conclusion
It has always been "too late to lock the barn after the horse has departed." The best procedure under such circumstances is to get the horse back and try to assure his availability, when needed, by suitable safeguards against future escapes. If, however, the animal persists in being absent when his services are required either a stronger barn should be built, or the horse should be replaced with a more reliable one.

The moral of this homely example is, of course, a stronger barn or a safer horse should have been provided in the first place.

So far as these pavements are concerned, safer ones, under prevailing conditions, could have been selected. However, they may still serve their purpose well, if and when, their serviceability is fully developed. It is too early to predict with certainty the final outcome.

This report provides in detail the results of a thorough investigation along the best known scientific lines and it also sets out our honest convictions as to the best and fairest procedure based on many years experience.

Very truly yours,
Chicago Testing Laboratory, Inc.
H. W. Skidmore.

Head of Planning Department Speaks At Safety Meeting

Kimberly—Accidents in the United States annually cause about 100,000 deaths; many million injuries, and losses exceeding two billion dollars, Rex Wells, superintendent of the planning department of the Kimberly mill, told about 300 employees Wednesday noon at a safety program at the clubhouse. He said the death rate fluctuates greatly from year to year but has a tendency downward, which would be more marked were it not for the constantly increasing deaths due to automobile accidents.

General interest in accident prevention was first stimulated by the enactment of workmen's compensation laws, the speaker continued. The present safety movement had its birth in industry, where approximately 20,000 accidental deaths occur each year, but has expanded rapidly beyond these confines into the fields of street and highway accidents.

In essence, the speaker said, accident prevention consists of: elimination of hazards, usually through engineering design; protection, such as guards, railings, and goggles; and supervision and regulatory measures, ranging from safety rules and danger signs to legislative enactments.

The effectiveness of these has been found to depend upon the safety education of those whom they are designed to protect, hence the employment of many devices intended to maintain interest and impart knowledge such as safety meeting, committees, and posters.

Head of Planning Department Speaks At Safety Meeting

Kimberly—Accidents in the United States annually cause about 100,000 deaths; many million injuries, and losses exceeding two billion dollars, Rex Wells, superintendent of the planning department of the Kimberly mill, told about 300 employees Wednesday noon at a safety program at the clubhouse. He said the death rate fluctuates greatly from year to year but has a tendency downward, which would be more marked were it not for the constantly increasing deaths due to automobile accidents.

Pupils Convert School Room Into Summer Resort

Neenah—Obtaining a little advanced environment on summer cottage life on Lake Winnebago, Lake Poygan, Lake Butte des Morts and other resorts, pupils in Miss Ruth Nielsen's Roosevelt school kindergarten class have converted the kindergarten into a replica of a summer resort.

The students first constructed a cottage of blocks and awnings and set up a few comfortable deck chairs for warm afternoons and evenings. Then they diverted the course of a river past their cottage, the river supposedly being the Fox. Not having the Fox river handy, the 5-year-old youngsters took a long piece of wrapping paper, painted it and tacked it to the floor in front of their cottage.

The pupils, assisted by their teachers, endeavored to convert the kindergarten into a summer resort atmosphere. They painted murals of Lake Winnebago and sailboats. They even made model sailboats for the river.

With the idea being conceived during a recent excursion along the shores of the lake, the youngsters related their adventures of swimming, fishing and boating on the lake while spending the summer at a cottage.

The students correlated the work of building the model resort and dramatizing summer cottage life with music, Miss Nielsen said. There are 63 children in the class.

More Than 50 Women Participate in Spring Social Gathering

Neenah—More than 50 women, representing missionary societies of churches in Appleton, Oshkosh and Neenah which are part of the Fox River Valley Federation of Missionary societies, attended the spring social meeting in the Twin City Y. W. C. A. last night with the Missionary society of St. Paul's English Lutheran church acting as hostess group.

Mrs. E. W. Keiding, Milwaukee, was guest speaker during the evening program, presenting an entertaining travelogue. She also related her experience during holy week in Palestine.

Mrs. Keiding was born in Denmark and made her trip to Germany, Switzerland, Italy, Egypt and Jerusalem when she was 18 years old, working her way as she traveled. In her discussion of Moslems, she amused her audience by telling them that according to the Moslem idea, women have not souls and gain entrance into heaven only through the good deeds of their husbands.

Mrs. J. O. Kopplin, Appleton, president of the federation, presided at the meeting which was opened by singing of the hymn, "Behold Us, Lord, A Little Space." Miss Helen Nooyen sang "I Have Not Seen" from "The Holy City" and Mrs. Richard Roth sang "Going Home" by Dvorak. Miss Gladys Michaelson played the piano accompaniments. Mrs. O. A. Rogstad, Oshkosh, gave a reading.

Nineteen women from Oshkosh and about 12 from Appleton were among the guests at the meeting.

Over 300 Attend Third 'Open House' Of Phone Company

Waupaca—More than 300 residents of Waupaca attended the third "Open House" of the Wisconsin Telephone company, in observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of a telephone service in the city. During specified hours of the afternoon and evening the employees of the office took the visitors through all of the departments of the exchange, demonstrating what lies behind each telephone call.

In 1888 a toll circuit was extended to Waupaca and a station installed in the millinery store of Mrs. M. E. Chady on E. Union street. This toll station was operated for nearly ten years, during which time there was considerable demand for local telephone service and in 1897 a switchboard was installed in the same office as the toll station and within a year 68 subscribers were receiving telephone service under Mrs. Chady's management.

In 1899 A. L. Hutchinson of Wausau decided to operate an independent exchange in Waupaca, purchasing the necessary equipment to introduce the speaker. A number of selections will be played by the band during the program. While the boy scouts are lowering the flag after the ceremony, "The Star Spangled Banner" will be played, followed by the return march to the clubhouse.

ment, poles and wiring. Before this was installed he sold his interests to H. G. Slater of St. Peter, Minn., and the latter established the Waupaca Independent Telephone Exchange with 250 subscribers. Miss Maude Holly, now Mrs. Otto Ziebell, was the first operator hired by Mr. Slater.

In 1906 Mr. Slater sold his exchange to the Fox River Valley Telephone company which operated it with S. L. von Almen as manager. By this time the exchange on Union street had but 10 telephones left.

The company again exchanged hands in 1912 when it was purchased by the Wisconsin Telephone company. At this time there were four magnet positions, 325 city subscribers and 300 rural subscribers under the management of Edward McCormick.

In 1916 the open wire construction of the exchange was replaced with a cable plant and shortly after this installation a new central office was opened in the building upstairs at 210 S. Main street, where it is still located. In 1917 the old exchange was moved and the cut-over brought common battery service at this time to 731 stations in the city and local service to about 318 rural stations.

Mr. McCormick was transferred to the Manitowish exchange in 1921. He was succeeded by William Sherman who continued here until 1922 when he resigned and James Frame succeeded him. When Mr. Frame resigned to engage in other business

13 Finish Their Extension Course

Waupaca—Smallest City in State to Offer U. W. Instruction

Waupaca—Thirteen students have completed their freshman year in the University of Wisconsin extension course which has been offered young people in this area through the efforts of the Lions club. They are Philip Anderson, Scandinavian; Roland Rosenberger, New London; Marshall Otis, New London; Roger Peterson, Owen Hanson, Arlene Huntton, Gordon Doerfler, Barbara Shambau, Bonnylyn Gilman, Sturgis Bailey, Mary Kreeger and Lorraine Hansen, Waupaca; and Irene Otterson, Scandinavia.

The Lions club, which has promoted the establishment of the university classes for two years, is credited with having done so in the smallest city in the state where such courses are being offered. Other 17 cities having such programs are in larger centers where they are usually held in conjunction with the programs of vocational schools. Waupaca is the only city where the members of the class group are defraying their course fees without assistance from public funds. In many of the other cities students are aided by vocational funds as a contribution to the adult education needs of the community.

Next year this freshman center will have the cooperation of the Waupaca county board which will guarantee $500 of the $2,600 necessary to continue the course in Waupaca, although no liability to county or Lions club is expected. If the course can be kept one more year, legislation is expected to provide this college course on a permanent basis.

Instead of meeting in the club rooms at the public library the class will have a room in the new elementary school building which will be ready by that time.

Bucholtz Child Dies at Home in Town of Seneca

Marion—Marian, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bucholtz, died Tuesday at her home in the town of Seneca. After an illness since Easter. Survivors are the parents, and two brothers Carl and James. The funeral will be conducted from the Evangelical church Friday afternoon, by the Rev. E. A. Lau.

Dog's Tombstone Is Excavated on Chilton Project

Chilton—A precious addition is being added to the Erbe-Hoffmann Funeral Home on the corner of Washington and N. Madison streets. The entire north wing has been torn down, and the addition will give additional room in the funeral parlors and in the living quarters.

While excavating the basement for the addition, a small tombstone bearing the inscription "Fido" was unearthed. Before this property passed to the present owners only two families had owned the home, that of Dr. David LaCount and that of Dr. T. J. Glenn. The house was built by Dr. Glenn and moved with his family to Wausau more than fifty years ago. Citizens of Chilton whose memories reach back for more than fifty years remember Fido as a great pet of the LaCount family, but no one had known of it or seen the monument until its discovery this week.

Employers are obliged to shelter their workers from the elements, the Mexican supreme court has decided, after a laborer died from pneumonia and doctors said it resulted from his working in the rain.

AND SO SHE TRIED THE NEW RINSO...AND NEXT WASHDAY

NO WONDER MOST OF THE WOMEN AROUND HERE USE THE NEW RINSO. IT GIVES RICH, LIVELY SUDS THAT LAST TILL WASH IS DONE.

YES...AND IT WASHES CLOTHES AT LEAST 5 SHADES WHITER THAN ORDINARY SOAPS...AND GETS COLORS REAL BRIGHT.

THE NEW RINSO IS GRAND FOR DISHES, TOO. GREASE GOES IN A TWINKLE. HANDS STAY SMOOTH AND WHITE.

MILLIONS of women who do not own washing machines depend on the New Rinso to soak their clothes whiter and brighter—without scrubbing or boiling. All they do is soak their clothes in Rinso's richer suds for 10 minutes—an hour—or overnight, if they wish—and clothes come at least 5 shades whiter and washable colors brighter than with ordinary soaps. Stubborn dirt on cuffs and edges may need a few gentle rubs between the fingers, but that is all. Clothes last 2 or 3 times longer washed this "no-scrub" way. Rinso is recommended by the makers of 33 washers. Rinso is America's biggest-selling package soap. Get the BIG package.

"AN EMPTY WAGON MAKES THE MOST NOISE"

—AN OLD PROVERB

The wise man is sparing of speech; another talketh much while saying little. Friends of Hills Bros. Coffee claim that its praises should be shouted from the housetops; that it is the bracing beverage which opens their day; that in its seal-brown depths there is the smile of the sun, with much of its warmth and cheer. Somehow it sounds best coming from these friends...millions of them. Hills Bros. are content to provide the inspiration for such sentiments—through this coffee so many enjoy.

Brillion Woman's Club Has Final Meeting of Season

Brillion — The Brillion Woman's club closed its 1933-34 year with a social get-together at the high school Tuesday evening. A 6:30 luncheon was served by the committee in charge, consisting of Mrs. Raymond Peters, chairman, assisted by Mrs. O. J. Zander, Mrs. E. W. Huenefeld, Mrs. A. E. Cottrell, Mrs. Fred Hunsaker, Mrs. Jacob Tesch and Miss Helen Beer.

The tables were decorated in spring colors with cut flowers. Fifty-six guests were present. Miss Antonette Merrill was toastmistress. Two toasts were given, one "The Modern Club Woman," by Mrs. T. B. Inglis, and the other, "The Welcome Member," by Mrs. Elmer Schmeller.

Other members of the program consisted of two vocal solos by Miss Helen Beer, a piano duet, Arlene Verdell and Betty Zorn, and a piano solo by Ruth Eastman. The annual report was read during the business session and each past president of the club was called upon to recite a rhyme, explaining her most embarrassing moment. Those responding were Mrs. Edgar Mueller, Miss Emma Horn, Mrs. Otto Zander, Miss Mildred McComb, Mrs. John Behnke and Mrs. Edwin Juno.

After the business meeting the newly elected officers were installed. They are Mrs. Reinhold Schulze, who succeeds Mrs. O. C. Wordell as president, Mrs. Edward Ritzrow, vice president; Mrs. Edgar Mueller, secretary, and Mrs. Henry Horn, treasurer. They will serve a two year term.

Big Crowd Attends Home Economics Program at Marion

Marion — The home economics program supervised by Miss Hafonrichter, was given in the school gymnasium and was largely attended. The first part of program was a little skit entitled, "Marjorie has a Party." The characters were: Mrs. Hammond, a distressed mother — Bernice Schoenrock, Marjorie, an irresponsible high school girl — Mary Baker; Edith, a friend — Marjorie Miller.

The first part of the style show included showing and modeling of pajamas and housecoats. "An Invitation to Dine" was another skit pantomimed by Dorothy Schoenrock as the mother; Jeannette Mielke, as the father; Mary Byers the son, and Joyce Miller as the daughter. The readers were Lucille Braun and Ida Luchterhand and the setting was a dining room with the family eating luncheon and showing the proper table etiquette. The girls also showed the proper way to set the table.

Jean Byers and Myra Gruenstern each demonstrated the making of three kinds of salads. The remainder of the style show was the modeling of school dresses, sport dresses, and dresses for afternoon wear. Miriam Gruenstern, wearing the cotton shantung print school dress she had just completed, was the reader. As each dress was modeled she told why and what colors were chosen, the material the dress was made of and the cost of each.

Lawrence Scores Hopkins' Stand In Iowa Campaign

Says WPA Head Can't be Non-Partisan and be In Politics

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—There are sad things happening all over the world where democracy is being debauched, but it is cause for genuine lament and regret that here in the United States an example of abuse of power should be found in the administration of relief funds. That a supposedly humanitarian agency of government should be managed by a man who has frankly become political in his behavior is something so shocking that it would be difficult to find a parallel in all the years of political intrigue in the national capital.

For the last two or three years, it has been asserted by foes of the New Deal that Harry Hopkins was using the relief administration to help the Roosevelt regime stay in office, but there was no evidence that the work progress administrator himself had any political axes to grind or that he would tolerate it throughout his organization.

Today, the American people have before them a frank confession, Mr. Hopkins, by prearranged interview with a Des Moines newspaper, announces what he thinks should be done by the voters of Iowa as between two candidates for the United States senate. If the announcement had been made by Chairman Farley of the Democratic National Committee, it might have been assumed that it was a political step quite naturally taken by a political chief. But the Works Progress Administration is supposed to be a non-partisan institution. The man at the head of it is not a member of the cabinet itself, which, as a rule, has a more or less a political slant, but he is an executive of one of the agencies created in national emergency for the purpose of dealing with the starving and destitute.

It will be argued now quite logically that Harry Hopkins can hardly administer the WPA job in an unpartisan way when he feels so deeply the political currents of the hour as to interest himself in trying to defeat a Democratic senator who happens not to have voted with President Roosevelt in his plan to "pack" the supreme court. Mr. Gillette of Iowa has shown himself independent of the administration, and that apparently is his crime in the eyes of the president.

It is said that Harry Hopkins is virtually the number one man in the list of presidential advisers nowadays, but, whether he is number one or number five, it is known he is frequently in conference with the president and wields considerable influence. The fact that he is as close as he is to the president has led to speculation as to whether Mr. Hopkins feels it his duty to manipulate the whole relief administration to help Mr. Roosevelt and his political causes.

These assertions are no longer discussed merely by the opposing political party. Within the last 24 hours, Brady M. Stewart, the campaign manager for Governor Chandler of Kentucky, New Deal governor, who is running against Senator Barkley for the senatorial nomination of the Democratic ticket, has made serious charges which it is hard to see how congress can overlook. If what Mr. Stewart has written in an open letter to the president is corroborated by a public inquiry, it means that someone might well be removed from office. Certainly, restrictions by congress on the "lending-spending" fund to prevent political chicanery has become the paramount issue of the hour, now that the Kentucky charges are in the open.

Charges WPA Support
"Every agency of the federal government dispensing relief," writes Mr. Stewart, "is resorting to methods and policies that are crudely reprehensible to force the citizens of this great commonwealth to support Senator Barkley . . .

"For the first time in our observation, the Works Progress Administration which was conceived to feed the families of the unemployed, irrespective of the politics, race or creed of those to be served, through its directing heads, is seeking to drive hungry and destitute people to vote for a certain candidate for office.

"Meetings and conferences have been held in practically every county of the state by key men in places of importance in the Works Progress Administration at which definite instructions were given to selected agents that no one should be placed on federal relief except upon the advice of Senator Barkley's campaign managers in the respective counties.

"Furthermore, these same agents have been required to inform all those individuals who seek federal assistance, that unless they are for the candidate for senator whom the heads of the relief administration are supporting, there will be neither relief funds nor jobs for them."

Can congress ignore these complaints and can Harry Hopkins himself fail to insist upon a complete investigation by an impartial tribunal of high-minded citizens to determine just what is happening not only in Kentucky, but in Pennsylvania and other states where relief funds are used to get voters to cast their ballots in a certain way?

Integrity at Stake
Surely, the very integrity of decent and honest government is at stake now. All the virtues of the New Deal and its splendid aspirations for a better national economy are more than overshadowed by the issues that have been raised in the charges against the WPA.

Time and again, the American people have abandoned party lines to administer a rebuke at the polls to those who have grafted in municipal government or have been guilty of wrongdoing in state government. The issue of morality in the federal government usually has to come to an acute stage before it becomes sensational. The issue has been placed now squarely on the doorstep of the white house not by a Republican, not by an old dealer and not by a scion of wealth, but by a Democratic governor of a state who has supported New Deal measures. Governor Chandler must have had peculiarly good opportunities to know whereof his campaign manager speaks and he must have deeply felt the provocation when he undertook to allow said manager to address an open letter on the subject to the president of the United States.

West Allis Attorney Refuses to Approve System's Valuation

Madison — (P)—Progress toward settlement of the water rate controversy between the city of Milwaukee and surrounding suburbs was impeded yesterday as Laurence Gram, city attorney of West Allis, declined to give formal approval to a valuation of $23,000,000 for the city water system.

The figure, which Fred S. Hunt, chairman of the public service commission said was "eminently fair," was to be used by the commission as a base in calculating rates for the customers of the Milwaukee water system.

Although Gram tentatively agreed to the figure at the public service commission's hearing Tuesday, he declared formal concurrence today, saying he might jeopardize the position of West Allis in another proceeding concerning water rates. He said the city of Milwaukee claims West Allis owes the city some $400,000 in unpaid water bills. He said the matter was now in litigation.

Representatives of the city and the other suburbs agreed to the stipulated valuation.

cricketers," said Sir Frances Lacey, secretary of the Marylebone Cricket club, in a recent speech here, "I do not think we should have had all this trouble that is going on in Europe today."

OCTAGON HOUSE BY PHOEBE ATWOOD TAYLOR

THE STORY SO FAR: Unscrupulous Marina Lorne, whose husband's post office mural has aroused Quanonet, is murdered by anyone's hiding in a coal bin, and left handed blow from her sister's then pulling the coal over 'em, but knife. Assey Mayo, Cape Cod detective, conceals hunted Pam Frye in his house. He has learned these facts: Pam found $50,000 worth of ambergris which Marina tried to claim, and hid it after discovering Marina dead in the garage; someone who smokes Turkish tobacco was eavesdropping on Pam's story to learn the whereabouts of the ambergris; agreeable Tim Carr, boarder at the Frye's Octagon House, smokes Turkish tobacco; hacco, is left handed and hated Marina in New York; gabby Aunt Nettie Hobbs saw Pam running out of the garage; and police are combing Octagon House for Pam.

Chapter 10 Another Mystery

Assey felt sure Pam must have hidden the ambergris in the cellar. It was lucky Tim had kept the police from moving the coal.

"They thought," Tim went on, "she was under the briquets. I tried to point out the impossibility of anyone's hiding in a coal bin, and then pulling the coal over 'em, but knife. Assey Mayo, Cape Cod detective, they took a lot of convincing. This is my first actual contact with the police, you know, and it amazes me to find that they think the way they do in movies and books."

"But they found," Assey said, "no trace of Pam?"

"No Where is she?" Mrs. Carr asked. "Where can she be?" And what can we do for her? And poor old Mr. Frye—we've got to do something, for his sake. Did you ask him about charges, Tim? My dear boy, what have you been doing in there? Mr. Mayo, how much do you charge for solving things? Because if you have a special rate for widows and orphans, Tim and I would like you to clear Pam Frye. You will, won't you?" she added briskly, as though the whole matter were settled.

"I don't do things for prices," Tim said.

Ascy said, "an—why are you two so set on helping? You never met the Fries till you landed here, did you?"

"No," Mrs. Carr said, "but we like Pam, and her father—and I feel a sort of sympathy with them. And to be brutally frank, I am glad that Marina Lorne finally met up with someone who gave her what she richly deserved. Even if I thought Pam killed her, I should still ask you to prove she didn't. And proving that she didn't won't be hard."

Ascy grinned. "How so?"

"Why, it's Jack Lorne, of course. Aaron Frye told us he'd been over there today, trying to borrow money—Marina was in some sort of scrape. Frye refused, and I suppose everyone else refused, and in desperation, Jack Lorne killed her. I can't see why he didn't do it long before. He is a—what's that expression, Tim? A summer guy?"

"A fall guy," Tim said gravely. "And he's left handed."

"He is?" Ascy said. "Are you sure about that?"

"Timmy," Mrs. Carr said plainly, "what did you talk about so long in there in the house? Didn't you tell him anything at all? Jack Lorne paints with his left hand, but he's right handed in everything else. He—Mr. Mayo, this seems rather a personal question, but is there anyone upstairs in your house? I can see a light and it's acting so queerly, going off and on."

Hunting
In one motion, Ascy twisted the key and swung open the door of the upstairs bedroom.

"Pam!"
He groped for the switch and flicked on the light. Pam was not on the bed—Pam was not there!

Ascy jerked at the closed door. A strong odor of mothballs filled the room. Inside, as he had left them, were his old suits, forlorn looking in their cloth coverings. Pam was not in the cupboard under the eaves. The window screens were firmly hooked in place. There was no connection with any other room.

Ascy was peering under the bed when Tim Carr bounded in. His white linen suit was streaked with grass stains, caused when Emma Goldman's leash had tripped him and sent him sprawling.

"What's the matter?" he demanded breathlessly.

"That," Ascy said briefly, "is what I'd like to know. She's gone."

"She—who? Say, did you have Pam Frye here all the time?"

"Yup," Ascy said, "Come on. We'll do some huntin'—"

Hastily he looked through the house. Then, equipped with flashlights, he and Timothy set out to explore outside.

"I know this place," Ascy said after an hour's frantic searching. "I know it! There's no road except the one out front. No one can come or go without using that road, right where we was. It'd take an army to cart that girl off against her will. And how'd anyone get in? How'd they get out? Them screens was in place. That door was locked. I never heard of a human being 'evaporatin' into thin air, but she has! She certainly has!"

Mrs. Carr and Emma joined the hunt. It was Emma, shy and blushing at something that fluttered in the underbrush, who found the only trace of Pam.

"In Danger"
"Her handkerchief," Ascy said, picking it up. "Least, it's mine. One I tossed on the pile of clothes I gave her tonight. It's the last clean one of that batch of monogrammed handkerchiefs."

"What does it all mean?" Mrs. Carr demanded. "Did someone take her away? Did she just go?"

Ascy shrugged. "Presumably she was in that bedroom, takin' a nap. That's what her note said. I locked her in, because it seemed to me I'd been awful careless. If she was in the room, how'd she get out? If she wasn't where'd she go, and what'd she leave that note for? It don't seem possible she'd go rompin' off without tellin' me—she knows perfectly well that she's in danger."

"But the police don't know she's here," Timothy said. "They're all Quantomet, combing and scouting vicinities."

"The danger," Ascy said, "ain't from the police. We didn't talk about it, but I thought she knew. And—that note."

"Gran," Tim said, "have you got that receipt she gave you for the board money? She wrote it out, all very formally. You might compare the writing on the receipt with that on the note. Perhaps someone else wrote the note."

Mrs. Carr finally produced the receipt from the depths of her capacious pocketbook. Ascy marveled as he invariably did, at the amount of miscellaneous objects that a woman could pack into a handbag of given dimensions. Mrs. Carr's was unusual only in that it contained besides the usual truck a quantity of puppy biscuit and three chives of catnip mice.

"Emma," she explained, "we always carry cans of evaporated milk, and paper cups in the car for her, too."

"Gran," Timothy said, "give him the receipt."

Director Urges Parents to Have Children Join in Program

New London—Announcement of a broad program of summer playground activities for the children and young people of this city was announced yesterday by R. M. Shortell, city recreation director, in a circular letter issued to all New London parents. Details of the program will be available next week. An attractive program is being arranged and plans are being made to award ribbons and trophy cups at the end of the playground season.

Daily, except Sundays, from June 7 to Aug. 15, play activities under supervision of attendants will be provided at the three school playgrounds and at Hatten Memorial park. Opportunities for activities for children and young people up to 17 years of age will be provided during the day. Older boys' and girls' and adult play will be arranged evenings from 6:30 to 8 o'clock.

The recreation director asked all parents to urge their children to take part in the leisure time activities at the playgrounds. Arrangements are being made for small children's supervised play at the Lincoln and McKinley school grounds. Activities for boys and girls from 7 and including 17 years of age will be provided at the Washington High school grounds and the swimming pool in the Hatten Memorial park. A wading pool for children under 7 years also is provided at the park.

Cleaning and painting of the Hatten park swimming pool and shower house is under way this week by James Brown who has been engaged as janitor this year. The surrounding premises also are being

"Here you are," Mrs. Carr passed it to Ascy. "Now, where's the note?"

Indoors, in the living room, they compared the handwriting.
